To the Health Seeker

Perhaps, a "Belief" exists that "everything has been tried and, failed"? Has "faith" subsided to the low ebb of accepting as a fact, the belief that a disease is incurable? Meanwhile, a vague misgiving persists that: Somehow, somewhere there must be an answer to incurability.

Chiropractically, the greatest handicap to health restoration is: So many cherish a traditional faith or belief to the bitter end. Meantime, a simple disease descends into an indefinite and complicated realm of incurABILITY. Thus faith and belief hinders, and denies, the natural self-curABILITY within themselves the rightful duty to remedy (meaning: to cure again).

Such statements, of disease, special or general are verified by an exhaustive survey. Over 93,000 persons turned, when disillusioned and disappointed, to Chiropractic (Nature) as a LAST resort.

Some 410 qualified Chiropractors raised no question as to the merits of faith, belief or, the competency of any remedy, to cure again. Nature had preordained that everything was incorporated within. Nature's OWN Remedy substituted incur-ABILITY for cure or marked improvement in 79,000 cases; or, 85% of tiresome, intangible disease names.

A critical reader may question this astonishing record. For the needy there are two basic considerations: The belief that a condition is obstinately incurable as, against the Chiropractic record with thousands of varied, incurable cases. Both cannot be right.

When faith and belief fails to move mountains, Mahomet must go to the mountain. Possibly, the earnest Health Seeker discerns, by the mountainous record, that everything has not been tried; that, high odds yet remain in his favor.

As Mahomet would resolve: If Chiropractic eventually, why not . . . NOW!

NAVAL LEADERS

except commanding officers of ships newly in from the sea during the first half of his morning.

Rear-Admiral Murray has had a long career aboard the ships themselves. He was a sea-going officer when the U-boat menace was at its peak in this war, and served at sea through the First Great War. He has sailed in as great a variety of craft as any man in the R.C.N. As senior officer among the graduates in the first class of Canada's old Naval College, it has usually fallen to him to explore any new developments contemplated by the Navy.

His anti-sub experience goes back to the early days of the First Great War. A member of the staff of the Commander-in-Chief of Britain's North American and West Indies Station, he helped organize the first troop and trade convoys on this side of the Atlantic.

Before the United States entered the war, he worked in the British-Canadian patrols responsible for intercepting attempts of Germany to run the blockade.

"Never saw a German flag until the day their fleet surrendered," he confesses with a smile.

That is in line with his concept of an escort officer's job—to keep his convoys where there are no submarines rather than hunt for U-boats to kill.

KEPT AFTER SUBS

At the outbreak of this war, Admiral Murray was Canada's Deputy Chief of Naval Staff. Earlier, in 1934, he had been the first Canadian naval officer to command the Halifax Dockyard, up to then under civil control.

A year after this war broke out he became commodore in command of seagoing forces operating out of Halifax. Soon afterwards, when the western approaches to the United Kingdom were a hotbed of U-boats, he took most of his ships across the Atlantic to fight them out of British ports.

When the subs came preying farther west, he was dispatched to Newfoundland to organize and command the anti-sub activities out of that country as Flag Officer, Newfoundland Force. The naval strength available there was scanty then, under his direction facilities had to be improvised in large measure.

In September, 1942, he was appointed Commanding Officer, Atlantic Coast at Halifax. The appointment brought him back to his native province. He was born at Granton, N.S., 47 years ago.

While Deputy Chief of Naval Staff, he served as one of the original members of the permanent Canada-U.S. Joint Defence Board.

Local Boy Now Presumed Dead

Previously reported missing on active service, James Alan Leighton, flight sergeant with the Royal Canadian Air Force, is now for official purposes presumed dead in a late R.C.A.F. casualty list. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Leighton, 719 Claude Street, Prince Rupert.

Speaker To Women Here

"Some Aspects of Community Welfare" was the subject chosen by Miss Amy Leigh, assistant superintendent of welfare, for a talk to a representative meeting of twenty-two women's organizations yesterday afternoon.

Miss Leigh is spending a few days in Prince Rupert on official business and expressed her appreciation of the opportunity to discuss community problems with forward-thinking citizens here. Miss Leigh has visited all urban and rural centres in the province and she was delighted to find that already in Prince Rupert the citizens were undertaking a community survey and that a co-ordinating committe had been set up to select sub-committees for various areas of interest.

With reference to co-ordination, she said that this was a day of co-operative planning on local, provincial, national, and international levels. To illustrate her point she used the example of the existing co-operation and co-ordination of the Armed services at home and abroad. A further illustration was the co-ordinating council of war services which Vancouver formed in the first months of war in order to assure a united home front. Here, as elsewhere, communities were confronted with multiple problems attributable in large measure to the war. Community and family break-downs were preventable insofar as the community became aware of the causes and put forth a planned effort to combat these.

Miss Leigh explained that each member of the community and each organization had its own particular part to play but, like a car, the parts were of little use unless properly assembled. She warned the women's organizations that they must not lose sight of the various men's organizations, service clubs, etc., which were also doing excellent work in the community. The essential thing was to combine forces. She hoped that as a result of the survey Prince Rupert would set an example in community planning by taking some decisive action to solve the problems revealed thereby.

Because of the delinquency rate, the Vancouver Council of Social Agencies conducted a survey of existing facilities. As a result neighborhood houses are established and are now providing a meeting place for groups of all ages.

In the discussion that followed was made to Community Chests vs. Tag Days. A point made was that a community should not undertake changes of this nature without careful consideration. It was felt that a Council of Social Agencies as it existed in larger cities might not be feasible at this time for Prince Rupert whereas a citizen's committee or co-ordinating council would be practicable and advantageous.

Mrs. J. J. Gillis, President of the Catholic Women's League, moved a vote of thanks to the speaker. This was seconded by Mrs. A. L. Haines, representing the Prince Rupert Parent Teachers' Association.

Kitwanga Organizes New Group

KITWANGA, Feb. 11.—A new organization called the Young People's Welfare Association was organized here on Tuesday night. The purpose of the group is to undertake such community improvements as the addition of a new library, gymnasium and sports facilities.

There was an excellent enrollment of members and an assured prospect of many others joining the association in the near future. The following compose the newly elected executive:

President—Joe R. Daniels.
Vice-President—Walter J. Sinclair.
Treasurer—James A. Fowler.
Secretary—Willis A. Morgan.
