Aged Governess Sees Third War

LONDON, July 15 (CP) — Today Miss Mary Pecard, 82, sits in a lonely cottage in the heart of a Normandy wood as one more war flows around her and past her. It's her third.

As France was recovering from the Franco-Prussian war, 66 years ago, a 16-year-old English gentlewoman crossed the Channel to become a governess to a French family of title. It was such a bad crossing that, as she stood on the French shore, she vowed she would never cross it again.

She kept her promise.

"I have spent most of my life in France," she said, "so I know just how the French hate the Germans. I was here through the last war and now through this."

For the last four years, this old Englishwoman has been hidden from the Germans by a French family. Twice members of the family have been thrown into jail by the Gestapo, and German troops have been stationed within 20 yards of the cottage. But nothing was ever said about the old governess who stayed there.

EXPENSIVE CREAM JUGS

LONDON (CP)—Six small silver cream jugs, made in London between 1759-1768 brought $816 at an auction. They were designed in the shape of cows.

FOUR YEARS AGO IN THIS WAR

July 15, 1940—Irish 1,359-ton ship City of Limerick lost in air attack off Cape Ushant. Royal Air Force raided objectives in Normandy, the Netherlands, northwest Germany and the Ruhr.

ACTIVITIES OF Y.M.C.A. and Y.W.C.A.
(By Dorothy Garbutt)

Old Time Dance tonight. French minuets, barn dances, schottisches, squares, two steps, fox trots, all the old assortment, brought out and brushed up and as good as new. All the old songs too, "Silver Bell," "Redwing," "Rainbow," "Pony Boy," "Cheyenne, Cheyenne!" Does your heart good to hear 'em and your feet good t odance to 'em.!

I had a letter-card from Dan Frankham, who was here for almost two years with the Navy shore patrol and is now on a course in Halifax. He says:

"The trip to Halifax was terrible, train crowded and hot, stopped in Jasper awhile and had a shower and walked around the town. Have met Pete Krochenski (Pete was with the Rupert shore patrol too for about a year, his wife worked in our hut canteen for a long time). He has another three weeks still to complete his course. They sure give us the works here. Hope to hear from you.—Dan."

Well, Chester LeMaistre and I helped out with the judging of the jitterbug contest at the carnival Saturday night. It was a lot of fun but I got away as soon as I could afterwards for fear of being lynched. I suppose whatever decision one would make would not meet with the approval of someone in the crowd.

Very many thanks to the lady and gentleman who brought me in some Japanese green glass fish floats. I was so pleased. I am still trying to find a large one but, nevertheless, have a splendid collection of the smaller ones—even an oval one which I believe is rather rare. I think they are the best souvenir of the Pacific coast one could have, coming all the way across the vast ocean the way they do—and with the color of the sea forever in them.
