VOLUNTEERS ARE NEEDED

TORONTO, June 22 (CP)—Volunteer workers have responded well to the call of hospitals throughout Canada for additional nursing help, but the need is still great according to hospital and Red Cross officials.

Although hospital staffs have been augmented the great increase in persons requiring hospital treatment has left the institutions actually understaffed. Various types of work are open to volunteers in both civilian and military hospitals.

Nurses' aids are in great demand by Canadian hospitals, most of which train their own helpers. These girls take over the heavy tasks and as Margaret Lumbers of the Toronto Red Cross put it: "do the slugging that relieves the nurses." This "slugging" involves making beds, washing and feeding patients, changing flowers and being generally useful.

Members of the Emergency Nursing Reserve of the Red Cross help in Mobile Blood Clinics and work as nurses' aids in hospitals.

Then there is the Voluntary Aid Detachment. V.A.D.'s take the St. John Ambulance First Aid and Home Nursing course, followed by an advanced seven-week nursing course given by the Red Cross. Lectures on military law, history of the Red Cross and drill twice a week are presented at the same time. Applicants are examined at the end of this course and, if competent, work a minimum of 12 hours a week.

"It's grand to have volunteers," Dr. Harvey Agnew, secretary of the Canadian Hospital Council stated. "We appreciate their spirit and they can feel that by keeping the hospitals operating they are making a definite contribution to national welfare at this time."

Montreal Girl with Queen and Princesses at Symphony Concert

LONDON, June 22 (CP)—For AW Mae Bowen it was a dream come true when she sat with the Queen and the Princesses at a symphony concert in Albert Hall.

The former Montreal girl, member of the R.C.A.F. Women's Division, was invited to share the Royal Box along with two Australian flight sergeants and a British wing commander.

AW. Bowen was given but an hour's warning after being selected for the honor from a list of R.C.A.F. airwomen. The occasion was the 75th anniversary performance of Sir Henry Wood.

Mrs. Vincent Massey was in the adjoining box and pointed out the celebrities to the thrilled Montreal girl. Later on, at the interval, the Queen spoke to her, asking where she was from and exchanging impressions on the concert.

"I nearly made a faux-pas by entering the box before Her Majesty after the interval," said AW. Bowen.

PILING IT ON

LONDON (CP)—George Smith, motorcycle trick rider, used to ride the Wall of Death under the name of "Tornado Smith." Then he joined the National Fire Service as a motor-bike dispatch rider. He was then sent to school to learn to ride a motorcycle.
