DAILY EDITION . . .
Wednesday, August 16, 1944EDITORIAL*COMMENDABLE EFFORT

Security officers are again emphasizing that Defence of Canada regulations prohibit the taking of parade pictures and shots of the shoreline, such that might give the enemy information should they fall into his hands.

Their determination to see that these regulations are not violated in the slightest is commendable and the public should co-operate fully.

While certain regulations and restrictions may irk us momentarily, we must all realize that the better we do our job at home the more helpful we are to our men and women at the front.

NATIONAL SPIRIT

Lack of understanding and unity in Canada can be attributed in no small measure to provincial views contained in the varied history text books used in schools across the Dominion.

Rotary clubs of Canada are united in asking for the compilation of a new history, the stories of each province being faithfully written by its own representative historian.

Through an interesting and unbiased history, common to all Canadian schools, we will create and maintain a greater national spirit in our Dominion.

This plan should be carried farther. Canadian and American historians should join in compiling a history that will serve to make the children of both nations North American-minded. However, let this new history not dwell too much on the early battles between the peoples of these two countries who have a common heritage. Not battles but common interests and needs, together with the value of co-operation, should be emphasized in such a school text book.

Government Aid For Roads Asked

TERRACE, Aug. 16 — Further consideration for village municipalities is sought by Terrace village commissioners in three resolutions they are sending to the Union of B.C. Municipalities for consideration at the September convention at Nelson.

One resolution seeks exemption for village municipalities from hospital payments in respect of newly born babies, on the ground new born infants are not residents within the meaning of the act.

Another asks the provincial government to restore the grant that once came from the liquor business. Commissioners contend that costs of labor and materials have so increased that the village cannot keep up road and sidewalk maintenance.
