Funeral Of Albert Still

There were many friends in attendance at the Grenville Court Chapel of the B.C. Undertakers yesterday afternoon for the funeral of the late Albert (Blondie) Still of the Commercial Hotel staff whose death occurred last week.

Rev. Mr. Allen of the Pentecostel Church officiated and Mrs. J. C. Gilker presided at the organ to accompany the hymns which were "Lead Kindly Light" and "Rock of Ages."

Interment in Fairview Cemetery followed the service.

There were numerous beautiful floral offerings.

The pallbearers were George James, Douglas Howson, Alex McLellan, Ernest Webster, Fred Holden and Andrew Cameron.

ACTIVITIES OF Y.M.C.A. and Y.W.C.A.
(By Dorothy Garbutt)

All the YMCA prodigal sons returned to the "Y" yesterday when Don Forward came back from a business trip to Vancouver. Gordon Webb returned from his furlough and Breen Melvin appeared on the scene from Vancouver sun - tanned and counting the weeks, days and minutes until his next holiday south. Don had a near go when the plane in which he was riding came down on a mountain side, 9000 feet up. However, nobody was hurt. The boys and girls in the concert party were still talking too about the air pocket they hit when coming over. They dropped one hundred and seventy-five feet and some of them are still looking for their stomachs. And me, I've never even been in an airplane, let alone being able to go around bragging about the accidents—airplane I mean—I've been in. Some people have all the luck.

If you want to get in a decent spot of dancing at the Old Time Dance this evening come in good time. Our dances start at 8:30, not nine or ten as some of you think. So don't kick if we close sharp at eleven. The earlier you come the more dancing you get.

I had quite an adventure the other evening. I went out to one of the messes for supper and left my purse in the ladies' cloak room on a shelf but took my wallet out of course. After supper I went to the cloak room and looked in my purse for my lipstick. While rummaging around I found a very lovely ring which definitely was not mine, nor, as far as we can tell did it belong to any of the girls. I turned it in at once, rather frightened by the episode. The question is—why was it in my purse? whose is it?—and do you think I have an unknown admirer who is going to shower gifts upon me after all these years? That angle has its possibilities. I must get Gaspard and Desmond at work upon the mystery.

Entertainment Was Rare Treat

If the cast of the Massey Harris show which entertained local service people in the Navy drill Hall at the week-end is as effective in its war work as it is on the stage the erstwhile manufacturers of farm implements ought to have a lot of government recognition pennants flickering at their factory mastheads.

Although billed as strictly amateur, parts of the show rise to professional levels. The presentations of the dance team of Meta and St. John, prohibiting all errors at the expense of the young lady's life, were smooth, furious, precise, and graceful to a degree rarely interpreted outside top flight theatre circuits. These weree expressed in an Apache dance at the beginning of the show and later in an adagio dance.

Beth Watson, with her two saxophones and educated legs, was also outstanding. She performed a remarkable exercise in concentration, or diffusion, when she played a tricky saxophone number while doing a tap dance routine.

The reception given by Saturday's khaki clad audiences to two full voice singers was a denial of the well worked theory that the modern soldier prefers crooners. Soprano Betty Spry, singing "Love Sends a Little Gift of Roses," "The Last Time I Saw Paris," "Sweetheart, Sweetheart," and other songs, was received warmly, as was baritone Douglas Rideout, who sang "When Irish Eyes are Smiling," "Old Man River," concluding with a stirring rendition of "This Is Worth Fighting For."

The eighteen entertainers were so slick in the business of changing costumes quickly that illusion of a much larger company was sustained until the cast presentation before the final curtain.
