Douglas B. Scott, son of W. Scott of this city, is serving with the Forty-Highlanders which is the British Eighth Army Brigade at the Italian front. He recently paid a visit to his home where he was impressed with the squalor in which many people are living there. Writing to his brother, Joe Scott, he tells of having seen children with running sores fighting in the streets for scraps of food.

Word has been received from Lieut. Brook, formerly manager of the Standard Oil Co. here, who is now serving on the Atlantic with H.M.C.S. Blairmore.

CO-OP LECTURE IS INTERESTING; JUNIOR W.A. HAS CHRISTMAS PARTY

On Monday evening, the members of the Farmers' Institute and a considerable number of interested people gathered in the Blue Room of the Terrace Hotel to listen to Breen Melvin of the Extension Department of the University of British Columbia. Mr. Melvin was introduced to his audience by Floyd Frank and spoke on the value of co-operative institutions such as the co-op store now being built by the Farmers' Institute. He stressed the need of loyalty to such an enterprise in order to make it function properly and develop along the proper lines as have the Co-operative stores in Massett and Prince Rupert. In order that the people of the district might better understand the meaning of co-operation and the co-operative movement, he urged the need of education and, with this purpose in view, organized four study groups which are to function during the winter months. Mrs. Kofoid, Mr. Normandeau, Mrs. Benoit and Mrs. C. C. King, whose son works in the Prince Rupert co-op store, were appointed leaders of the groups.

St. Matthews Junior Women's Auxiliary, under the leadership of Miss Dorothy Hills, held a Christmas supper party on Wednesday evening. The table was beautifully decorated and the girls say that the dinner was one of the tastiest ever served to them. Tiny paper cups, filled with candy and nuts, were used as place cards. The evening was spent in various games after which ice cream was served and each member given a present. The invited guests were Kay Willisroft, Roberta Lambly, Bea Grosvenor, Margaret Hunter, Joyce Cote, Irene Cote, Helen McKie, Mrs. Margaret Schultz, Mrs. Verna Trumper, Marguerite Paquette, Shirley Hayhurst, Patsy Poole, Islay McMillan, Marilyn de Kergomeaux, Agnes Davidson, Margaret Mile, Sarah Mile and Bernice Matthews. The rector brought the proceedings to a close with special prayers in which the members prayed for those less fortunate than themselves.
