THANK OFFERING

BATTLE, Sussex, Eng. —As a thank offering for victory in the Battle of Britain, Col. T. B. Hornblower presented Battle royal district council of which he is a member with eight acres of ground overlooking the countryside above which many air duels were fought.

The trumpet call of the whooping crane can be heard as far as three miles.

Crowning of Princess Beatrice Didrickson as Queen of the 1945 Civic Centre Carnival at 8 o'clock last night was one of the climactic moments of the annual week of celebration and a high point in the life of the pretty, 19-year-old "sovereign."

At the coronation ceremony held before a crowd of 1,500 in the Carnival pavilion, Mayor Daggett placed the jeweled crown on the head of the lovely Junior Chamber of Commerce candidate whose sale of ticket votes made her eligible for the signal honor. Then His Worship handed Queen Beatrice the carved mace.

"I present to you this symbol of your authority. May you wield it with justice and with full knowledge of your authority," the Mayor said. A fanfare of trumpets by the Naval Band which had led the coronation parade followed his words.

"I cannot explain how very happy and proud I am. Thank you all," Queen Beatrice responded.

The crowd cheered their queen enthusiastically at intervals during the ceremony as it had done when the royal party entered the Carnival grounds.

Wearing a coronation gown of white slipper satin, period style, with lace panels, and royal purple and white cape trimmed with ermine, Queen Beatrice entered the Carnival grounds, escorted by Lieut. Edward Garner, of the Prince Rupert Regiment. She carried a bouquet of carnations as she proceeded across the grounds to the pavilion.

The Queen was preceded by her maids of honor, Miss Evelyn Bussey, wearing white slipper satin with crinoline waist and net skirt with satin band. Miss Ruth Giske, in turquoise blue taffeta with blue net skirt, and Miss Lillian Knutson, wearing tea rose slipper satin, embroidered with sequins and with net skirt.

Escorting Miss Bussey was Lieut. Syd Elkins, while Lieut. R. E. Montador escorted Miss Giske and Lieut. John Carr accompanied Miss Knutson. Each of the girls carried lovely bouquets.

Leading the procession were two small crown and sceptre bearers, Joe Scott, jr., carrying the crown on a purple velvet cushion, while John Lambie carried by Carol Elkins and Shirra Halliday, tiny flower girls in Holliday, tiny flower girls in white-taffeta dresses and carrying nosegays of complementary colored blooms. Train-bearers were Shirley Williams and Marilyn Armstrong.

The coronation party began its procession in automobiles at the Court House and, paced by the naval band of H.M.C.S. Chatham and a 22-man guard of honor from the Soo Suds regiment, it entered the grounds by the Third Avenue gate, passing dinner in the Philbert Hotel Cafe.

between the throng in the Carnival grounds.

At the conclusion of the ceremony, the party left by the Second Avenue gate. Princess Beatrice returned to the grounds later in the evening to officially open the coronation ball.

Following the coronation, the regalia party visited the Capitol Theatre to be presented on the stage by Manager Harry Black. During the evening they were also pleasantly entertained at the U.S.O. Club and at the American Corporal's Club with Corp. Douglas Sweeney as host.

T. Norton Youngs, chairman of the Civic Centre committee, acted as Master of Ceremonies and thanked all who had assisted in making the coronation successful.
