Atomic Possibilities . . .

It is one thing for President Truman to say that the secret of the atomic bomb will be kept in sacred trust by the United States. It may be quite another thing, however, for United States to be actually able to retain exclusively the secret of atomic energy. There is every reason to believe that there are scientists in other parts of the world equally as learned and ingenious as those of the United States and quite as capable of discovering the secret themselves. And too, no matter how good the intentions might be, it may be just impossible to keep the original secret.

How the world is going to agree to outlaw the use of atomic energy in future warfare appears a little difficult to see but it is an ideal towards which, of course, it is essential to work.

Grim possibilities of atomic energy were suggested at the week-end by one of the world's most eminent scientists and one of the leading KENNEY GETS churchmen—both deep philosophers.

Prof. Albert Einstein saw in an SAFE MARGIN interview published in Atlantic Monthly that the atomic bomb could kill, perhaps, two-thirds of the people on earth but there would always be enough thinking men and books left to start again. Prof. Einstein favors that a world government be set up soon and jointly by the United States, Great Britain and Russia to reduce the peril of atomic warfare.

Most Rev. Cyril Forester Gargett, Archbishop of York, said Saturday that, unless the atomic bomb is controlled by international organization, it is "the handwriting on the wall," foreshadowing the fulfilment of Biblical prophesies of the end of the world.

Truman Dismisses Isolation

In his Navy Day address given in New York City Saturday President Truman appears to have brushed aside all fears which the Nations of the world may have held concerning a possible American isolationist attitude in the post-war period. Mr. Truman stated flatly that the United States will base her foreign policy on military strength and a friendly partnership with all peace-loving nations. The President explained that by this he means that the United States will use its military strength solely to preserve the peace.
