

Be Sure to Vote . . .

June 11 is the day when every duly qualified citizen of Canada will have his or her chance to have a private and untrammelled say in the affairs of the country by going to the polls to choose directly who is going to represent them in the councils of the nation and indirectly who will conduct their affairs through the process of government. Expressions of opinion are being heard on every hand and some of these expressions are enthuastic and even heated.

It is to be hoped that every one will vote on the appointed day and will not recklessly or carelessly neglect that democratic privilege of exercising the franchise free, unhampered and uncoerced.

We are glad to subscribe to the suggestion: "Vote as you like-but

Advertising Is Ready . . .

It has been a long time since the consumer was allowed to relax in his armchair and scan his evening newspaper for new and interesting things to be purchased in the line of autos, radios, refrigerators, boats, fishing tackle and the like. But it won't be much longer before these items will be flowing from the plants again.

The quantities will be much greater than after World War I for the nation has grown in production and consumption capacity. During that time, too, some titans have developed in industry and certain names have become known as standard through advertising and excellent production.

Advertising has, as all citizens know, played a big part in the war in selling war bonds, explaining shortages and distributing goods throughout the country. It is in excellent position to do a similar job in bringing back peacetime commerce on which to build for tomorrow.
