Death Reduces Numbers of Princes of the Church from 69

> By LOUIS ZACCARDI Associated Press Writer

VATICAN CITY, May 23 (AP) The cardinals of the Roman Catholic Church — advisers of the Supreme Pontiff and, at his death, electors of his successornow number only 41 out of normal 70, a new low for modern times that raises the question of holding a consistory. Well informed Vatican circles expect consistory is generally an occa- little lard. this to take place soon now that the war in Europe has ended.

Despite the fact that Pius XII has been Pope for more than six years, this would be the first consistory under his pontificate. Several times the number of cardinals fell even lower, but no other Pontiff has allowed such a long period to elapse without creating new ones.

The Popes have generally followed the custom of leaving one or two seats vacant, but in 1517 the number of cardinals had dropped to 18. Pope Leo X called a consistory and created 31 new cardinals ,the most ever created at one time.

In December, 1935, Pius XI created 19 new cardinals, bringing the total up to 69. Since then there have been no proclamations and the death of 28 men has accounted for the present low figure.

Of the 69 cardinals in 1935, 39 were Italian, three German, four American, six French, three Spanish, two Polish, two Czech, and Belgium, Hungary, Portugal, Ireland, Brazil, Canada, Austria, the Middle East, Argentina and Great Britain each had one. Deaths Since

Of the 28 that have died since 1935, 14 were Italian and 14 non-Italian, including three Americans, two French, two Spanish, one Portuguese, one Brazilian and one British. This leaves Portugal, Brazil and Britain without a cardinal, while the United States has lost three of its four.

It is generally believed that the vacant seats will be filled the way they were in 1935, although some Vatican sources believe the number of seats-70fixed by Sixtus V in 1568-may

Kinsmen's Boxing At "Y" Tonight

Two feature bouts and eight schoolboy fights will be the events of the Kinsmen's boxing tournament to be held in the YMCA gymnasium tonight as initial feature of their May 24 celebration. The principal bout will be between Garth Elder, Soo Suds, 127-opunder, and Billy Anderson, 125 pounds. The fight will be for a decision in four two-minute rounds. Garth was awarded the best sportsman's trophy at the Northwest Service Command boxing tournament early in April, and Billy Anderson was also a popular contender in the tournament. A non-decision exhibition bout between Benny Windle, 145 pounds, and Leo Adolph will also be an outstanding feature.
