THE day Aunt Agatha said, "No more tea L and coffee until your disposition improves ... you'll drink Postum instead" - Uncle Jack almost decided to go back to sea.

But Aunt Agatha can be persuasive, and Uncle Jack actually tried Postum. "Shiver my timbers if itsisn't all right", he said. "It's not like tea and it's not like coffee. But it's mighty good just the same". And that night he slept. like a baby.

Falls, he vowed, there were four Mr. Applewhaite said that he days of bright sunshine.

In 1845, Hugh C. Baker, a Hamilton mathematician, was one of the first Canadians to do more than wish for security for his family. But there were no Canadian life insurance companies, and no American com panies operating in Canada here was in Quebec City - a long way to go to seek protection. Roads were bad, and there was only the beginning of a railway.

To him, life insurance meant security for himself and his family. Because New York was the easiest centre to reach where life insurance was available, he set out-on horseback.

LIFE INSURANCE has developed into a great institution because it has grown with the growing needs of our people. The financial stability which it affords has made it an essential factor in our everyday life and a vital instrument of social service

After he crossed the American boundary, Mr. Baker boarded a stage-coach and in it jolted day after day across upper New York State. He was a true pioneer of a new way of life.

steamer down the Hudson. In New York, he found life insurance already a national force in the United States.

As a Canadian, he resolved to help his own countrymen obtain the same associates, organized the first of the Canadian life insurance companies. And in the 100 years since Mr. Baker pioneered protection of the people by the people in Canada, millions of Canadians have enjoyed financial security through life insurance.

It is good citizenship to own through the years.
