An Important Manifesto . . .

Unlike most political manifestoes, the keynote speech of Premier John Hart for the forthcoming provincial election, published to considerable extent in the Daily News today, contains news of major importance. Of particular interest here is the Premier's statement of policy in regard to the important matter of development of the northern part of the province.

A promise of an extensive and comprehensive program for the development and betterment of the province is made. More than that the coalition government, through its good management, is in a fine position to implement that program.

We would commend the Premier's manifesto to the careful attention of the electors so that they may be guided thereby in their exercise of the franchise.

Hard to Understand . . .

If the defence authorities of Canada mean business at all, it is, of course, obvious that Prince Rupert must figure largely in their plans. The experiences of war in the Pacific accentuated the strategic position of this port both in offence and defence. That is why it is difficult for us to understand the present move to abandon the fixed installations that have been established here at such great cost although we hopefully anticipate that this does not indicate a future policy of neglect.

The Seal Cove air base was initiated as a permanent defence project and, as such, was under way even before the war started. Now it has been intimated that it is to be all but abandoned.

The Prince Rupert naval base—H.M.C.S. Chatham—involved an expenditure of $1,500,000. Now it is being dismantled or sold out following decommission.

To many people, convinced that, even though the war may be over, the Pacific is by no means secure, the present move to abandon Prince Rupert, proven by war to be the most strategic key port in the Pacific, seems little short of ridiculous.

National security and not merely local development is involved.

Freedom of the Press . . .

Every so often in the affairs of a newspaper which is endeavouring to serve the public in a normal manner there comes a time when a choice has to be made between publishing the news to which the public has come to consider itself entitled or suppressing the news in order to please or protect an individual advertiser or subscriber. Decisions have to be made by the editorial department which, according to the disposition of the offended patron, may result in the cancellation of an advertisement or of a subscription.

These are the little problems with which the experienced newspaperman has to deal now and then and which he takes quite philosophically.

After all, the most of our advertisers and our subscribers are our patrons because of the value they receive. The fact that they may be offended by something we may publish does not affect the business consideration.

In any case, the honest and progressive newspaper usually strives to publish the news even at the risk of losing the occasional customer and does not submit to being dictated to by individual advertisers or subscribers.

The few dollars that may be lost by the odd "incident" is generally made up for in the end through the building up of a reputation of courage and service. And, of course, when such incidents bring repercussions, it is a testimonial to the fact that we are getting around a bit and that we are really of some service. It is a dull newspaper, indeed, that always has smooth sailing without the occasional squall. Such a newspaper is not usually very effective either from the advertiser or reader standpoint.

And, further, those who may feel themselves to have been wrongly dealt with have always the welcome recourse of our columns in which to express their side of the case within due bounds—a privilege which the Daily News has always been generous, sometimes to the point of being criticized, in extending.

LOCAL GIRL WEDS SAILOR

A wedding of local interest took place at the Church of the Annunciation on Saturday when Rev. Father Carroll officiated at a double-ring ceremony which united Zilla Maret, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Sherman of Prince Rupert, to Leading Seaman Gerard Noel Lemire, R.C.N.V.R., of Melville, Sask.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was lovely in embroidered white French organza, with Mary Queen of Scots head dress and fingertip veil. She carried a gardenia-covered prayer book, and was attended by Mrs. Marie Aeton, matron of honor and Mrs. Diana Blair, bridesmaid. Both wore blue dresses and veils and carried bouquets of pink and white carnations.

Groomsman was Petty Officer Gordon Aeton, and Seaman Sid Alexander was usher. Organist Charles Balagno played the wedding music.

In the evening a reception at the Knights of Columbus Hall gave opportunity for their many friends to express best wishes to the newly married couple. Refreshments were served and a beautiful three-tier wedding cake was cut by the bride in traditional fashion. The tables were attractive with red gladioli and lighted tapers.

Leading Seaman and Mrs. Lemire are spending part of their honeymoon in Vancouver and will later visit with the bridegroom's family at Melville.

PSYCHIATRISTS TALK TOBACCO

British Woman Doctor Says Smoking is "Insidious and Increasing Disease"

LONDON, Oct. 2 (P)—Dr. Sybil Tremellen, a London psychiatrist, has stirred controversial echoes by condemning smoking—in a nation where women puff cigarettes on the street and tobacco is the inevitable associate of morning and afternoon tea in offices and workshops.

Dr. Tremellen said her patients, mostly suffering from "anxiety neurosis," are plunged into deep depression if they smoke; that the effects of the mother smoking on the newborn child will be discovered only later; that she does not agree with other doctors who say that smoking soothes the nerves; that smoking is "an insidious and increasing disease;" that the medical profession should face the whole question "honestly" and take steps to overcome the smoking habit and that the increase in nervous illness is partly due to smoking.

One reply came from the Institute of Industrial Psychology which said that "the soothing effect of a cigarette is a very important factor in the productivity of the nation's workers."

Dr. R. S. Schilling, secretary of the industrial health research board, said that there was evidence heavy smoking had an inferious effect on health but as far as industrial workers were concerned he did not think the matter was serious. Few of them had opportunities to smoke while at work.

Alex Jackson, manager of the Wembley Speedway, where motorcycleists career about dirt tracks, said that only men with the strongest nerves were successful at this sport. Nearly all the riders smoked and they had told Mr. Jackson a cigarette was a useful sedative before a race.

MIRACLES of MAKE-DO

Is there a man's discarded suit hanging in a cupboard in your house?

Perhaps it's threadbare in places or a little shiny at the elbows. Maybe the man of the house is just tired of it. More probably he's keeping it only because "it may come in handy some time."

Whatever the reason, the suit should be in use. With a little effort, you may be able to put new life into it. If not, look into its re-make possibilities.

He'll howl when you ask for it—you can depend on that. Men seem to like old clothes the best.

So be diplomatic. Show him this grand array of warm, comfortable, up-to-the-minute clothing you can make from it for yourself or the children, and watch him change his mind. Patterns are available at the stores.

TODAY'S MENDING HINT
(To repair a frayed sleeve edge)

Rip the sleeve lining at the cuff. Cut off sleeve buttons. Take out the cotton fabric stay inside. Turn down sleeve hem. Brush out all lint and soil. Cut through the crease exactly on the line of wear keeping a straight even line as you cut.
Pin and baste the facing back to the sleeve, right sides together. Match seam and press lines. Take a seam no more than one-eighth of an inch deep.
Press seam open. With the facing turned down, stitch by machine very close to the seam line. Turn facing up inside the sleeve and baste so that the seam line and machine stitching are just inside the sleeve. Be careful to turn in all raw edges and, with a loose stitch, tack the facing to the sleeve. Sew lining back in place. Press, and sew the bottom on again.
