SEA CADETS' SPORT NIGHT

A big sports night featured the weekly parade of the local Sea Cadets Corps last night. There was keen inter-divisional competition in a variety of events including relay races and other contests involving group teamwork. Outstanding item was a chariot race which was arranged and airected by the padre of the corps, Rev. Gordon Smith.

I would imagine a bond issue could be floated and sold to the general public but responsible men would have to be behind it. Building costs are high at the present time but it would take time to make necessary arrangements and by that time costs will be more normal. Such an undertaking here would benefit every business in town, as it could be stipulated in all contracts that local firms have preference, providing bids are in line with outside bids. This would also attract outside capital as, when outsiders see the local people have sufficient con-KINGSTON, Jamaica, (P-The fidence in their town to invest British government has agreed one million dollars, it would to support the building of a stimulate interest and attract 'university college" in Jamaica,
