Tony Lazzeri, in big time baseball 12 years and batting hero of the 1937 World Series, was given his unconditional release by New York Yankees of the American League eight years ago. He became manager of Toronto Maple Leafs of the International League in the middle of the 1939 eason but was let out at the end f the 1940 campaign.

New Westminster Salmon beles defeated Mimico-Brampton Combines 22-7 to take the bestof-five series three games to one, two years ago. The Salmonbellies won back the Mann Cup, representing the Canadian senior box lacrosse championship, for the West for the first time New Westminster won from St. Catherines in 1939.

The popular notion that only properly calcified brains are capable of playing chess is going by the boards, says Kenneth Harkness, managing editor the magazine Chess Review and the man who set up the American end of the recent U, S .-Soviet Union chess tournament Among the hard facts that nourish his conviction is the brisk sale of a book, "Invitation to Chess", which Harkness wrote in collaboration with Irvin Cherney, associate editor of the Review. Published three months ago 28,000 copies have been printed. Also in defence of his belief he points to Russia, where government official, the Chief Chess Inspector sees to it that all good Communists mind their pawns and queens-and to America, "where the game is taught in the public schools of Milwaukee, and they have civic chess Something like 13,000 volumes on chess are at hand in the Cleveland public library, Harkness says A Chicago manufacturer-"one of many"-wrote him asking for a promotion pamphlet on his book to include in the 50,000 chess sets he planned to make between now and the first of the year. Harkness says the combined output of U.S. manufacturers in that same period will probably amount to 400,000 or 50,000 sets. Chess Review itself, the oldest of America's 3 learing magazines devoted to parade 2000 hrs Fridays. the game, suggests the rise in chess's popularity. When Harkness became managing editr in 1941 the circulation was about tained until further notice. (tf

HON. R. L. MAITLAND Attorney - General

R. L. Maitland, K.C., better known as "Pat," is one of Brifax aboard H.M.C.S. Puncher to- tish Columbia's linest orators morrow. In all this transport is who has won high honors in his > was one year old and received his education in the coast city. Two years after he was called to the British Columbia bar in 1913 he was named Vancouver city

Mr. Maitland first offered himself as a candidate in the provincial field in 1924 as a Conservative and was defeated. Four years later he tried again and was returned. He retired from political life in 1933 when Promier S. F. Tolmie formed union government but came back again in 1937, heading the poll in Vancouver-Point Grey. It was with Maitland that Premier John Hart negotiated to bring about a coalition of Liberal-Progressives and Conservatives when no party received a majority in the 1941 elections.

1,000. Now it is up to 11,000 and struggling hard against paper

The game's infinite possibilities account for the fact that intellectuals held it as their special property for thousands of years, Harkness says. In the middle ages it was patronized like art, a noble jealously clothing, fering and pampering the chess genius who might reflect some glory on his title. "But the mistake the average person always makes, because chess really is a game with problem incapable of solution, everyone had to play it on the abstract level that the doddering old men and child prodigies have always played it.

As a matter of fact chess is as simple as you make it. The average player who takes it up just for the fun of it never thinks ahead more than two moves. You don't have to." The difference between amateur chess and amateur checkers, says Harkness, is mainly "in the way you win. In checkers you're out to get all your opponents pieces. In chess you're only after one piece | -the king. You've won when you can capture the other fellow's king and he can't keep you from doing it." Despite its apparent growth in popularity, he doesn't think it will become a mere fad. "Chess isn't like that," he says. "Once you take it up you've taken it up for life."

As I sit here a-thinking o' the days o' yesteryear, My eyes grow dim with sadness and I blink away a tea I can hear the thunder of the guns—the machine gu deadly rattle,

And see faces of old comrades who long since fell in battl The picture changes again—they are rising from the dea A mighty host in armor-marching thru the poppies re Perhaps this phantom army that I in fancy see, Is the vanguard of the Allies leading on to victory. From the jungles of New Guinea to Iceland's frigid cold On the sandy wastes of Africa—the story will be to How the lousy sons of Nippon, got the order of the bo And were kicked clear back to Tokyo, from the isles of the Aleut.
