Joyce and Amery . . .

Pleads Guilty to

False Pretenses

How many, if they found themselves under similar circumstances, might not also have done as did William Joyce and John Amery, both of whom have been condemned to death by British courts for high treason for engaging in the dissemination of enemy propaganda against their own country in its extremity? Young and loving easy living, they fell ready victims to intrigue and, for the reward which was tendered them, cunningly at first, became dupes of the astute enemy, traitors to their own homeland. Particularly tragic was the case of young Amery who came of good family and whose father enjoyed position of ciple so now he has gone to his death.

No doubt there are many more IS INSTALLED who were equally as treacherous as Joyce and Amery and who have not been caught. Doubtless there are many more who, had they found themselves similarly situated, might have shown no greater fortitude of character than did they.

Six Christmas seasons subdued by war are behind us . . . now we celebrate our first Christmas since Victory, bringing back the absent ones to bridge the years between with the joy of family reunions.

The old familiar things . . . the tree lights glowing in the windows . . . haunting echoes of carols long remembered . . . the happy flurry of excitement unwrapping the gay parcels on Christmas morn . . . these have a deeper meaning now.

Let's make it a really Merry Christmasan old-fashioned festive season for enjoying the good things of the table and the quieter pleasures of home firesides.

But, in our season of rejoicing with the men returned from overseas we shall remember those yet to come home . . . the valiant wounded in our military hospitals ... and all those in less fortunate circumstances than our own.
