of the domestic market provides a substantial backlog for domestic products but in Canada prosperity cannot be based on internal demand, due to our small population and our great productive ability.

Canada's periods of prosperity and of depression can be measured almost exactly by the rise and fall of our export trade as anyone who wishes to look up the facts may find out for him-

This being so, it is only another way of saying the same thing when one points out that Canadian economic development in the future as in the past depends on this country's degree of participation in the sphere of internation trade. Monetary stability is one of the foundation stones of international trade.

All those who are offering their particular panaceas are succeeding only in adding to the general bewilderment. The inescapable facts remain as they have always remained and cannot be glossed over with airy generalities about Plenty for All.

A Situation Which Must Be Met Whend em tired

Of course, the situation now exist- lone not regular ing whereby thousands of the men of Canada's Army are absent without leave because they do not want to fight is ridiculous and cannot be tolerated. No army can permit its men to flout orders and discipline in this manner and take the law into their own hands. There is no excuse for them and it is to be expected that they will be systematically and persistently rounded up and accorded the penalties for desertion which can be very severe.

The H.D.'s never were very popular but they did have the chance to show the stuff of which they were made and many of them eventually did as more doubtless will. Any who have now deliberately made deserters of themselves are deserving of rigorous punishment. The military authorities will rightly enough be expected to take a firm hand in the matter so that this sort of thing, amounting to practically anarchy in the forces, will be put down

Thousands of men like this cannot However, if Canada is to maintain be allowed to remain any longer ina high degree of employment, it is excusably at large. It they were the reasonable to suppose this condition whole army might soon be out of con-
