LOCAL UNIONS AFFIRM SUPPORT OF STRIKING WINDSOR WORKERS

Declaring that "there can be no isolationism on the labor front" speakers at a public meeting in support of the strikers at the Ford plant in Windsor, in the Oddfellows' Hall last night exhorted the audience of more than 100 to "add their financial and moral support" to the Ford strikers because defeat for labor at Windsor is defeat for labor.

THREE VESSELS LAUNCHED TODAY

Unique in the marine record of Prince Rupert was the launching of three fishing vessels on the high tide at noon today in two boat yards in the Cow Bay district.

Speakers also recruited canvassers to solicit funds to support the strike in city homes and business places, and endorsed the sending of a telegram to Prime Minister Mackenzie King deploring the way the government has handled the labor strike.

Platform speakers were August Wallin, president of the Prince Rupert Labor Council; Stan Boshier, secretary of the Prince Rupert local, United Fishermen and Allied Workers' Union; Angus MacPhee, Boilermakers' Union official and executive member of the Prince Rupert Labor Council; and James Nichol, former Boilermakers' Union secretary. Chairman was Alderman W. H. Brett, M.L.A.-elect.

Mr. Wallin said that organized labor "has its back to the wall" and that Henry Ford is the "spearhead of the industrialists who have declared war on labor."

"We are determined to add our financial and moral support to the Ford strikers," he declared. "There can be no isolationism among the Unions of Canada." Union Must Win Strike Mr. Boshier said that the pattern of industrial relations in (Continued on Page 2)

GEO. ANDERSON IS DELEGATE TO CONFERENCE

George Anderson, business agent for the Prince Rupert Deep Sea Fishermen's Union, was elected by union members at a meeting Sunday afternoon to represent them at the annual conference between representatives of the halibut fishery and International Fisheries Commission at Seattle on November 29.

At this year's conference, the international body will hear representations from fishermen's delegates regarding broadening the powers of the commission to cover types of fisheries which directly concern the welfare of the halibut industry.

It is also understood that the halibut men will urge that the commission be given power to effect a compulsory system of lay-overs between fishing trips to replace the voluntary system indicated to be unsatisfactory.

Following Sunday's meeting, Mr. Anderson said that he probably will leave for Vancouver on Tuesday to consult with officials of the Vancouver unions prior to the conference. The conference will be attended by fishermen's delegates from fishing centres in Canada, Alaska and the United States.

G. W. Nickerson of Prince Rupert is chairman of the commission.
