New Transportation Era . . .

A railway official, speaking in Stratford, Ontario, evidently foresaw the early return of the day when highway transportation facilities will be seriously competing with the railways for revenue from both freight and passenger traffic. It is to be supposed that, now Prince Rupert has its highway connecting with the interior, there will be for the first time this sort of competition in the immediate area.

With some merit it is argued that the railroads, which rose so magnificently to the occasion and played a role second to none in winning the war by keeping the men and material moving, even the Prince Rupert line playing a major part in the war in the Pacific by moving thousands of men, thousands of tons of bombs to say nothing of an enormous multiplicity of war equipment, are entitled to some measure of protection in the normal days of peace to come.

Doubtless, some way will have to be found whereby the facilities of the railways can be maintained up-to-date and active—if for no other reason than to keep them in readiness for another great emergency.

To meet the problem, it is obvious that railway facilities will have to be modernized and popularized on the one hand while there will have to be some regulation and control of the competing transportation services, including those of the highways on the other. And, withal, the public interest must be reconciled.

Nationalization of transit facilities will be the answer of many people to the whole problem. That is what the new government of Britain pins its faith in and it is significant that even some of the important private interests are bowing to the view.

Then too, in the transportation field, there will be the ever-growing factor of air as against ground transportation. The possibilities of air transportation seem almost limitless now.

Now that the restrictions of war are being removed, there will be nothing to hold back inevitable new developments in the transportation as well as many other fields of public service. Changes are in store, new problems are ensuing that some of us may not yet appreciate and have not yet got around to think of adjusting our habits and thoughts to.

OLD AGE PENSIONS

Editor, Daily News:
May I point out that the motion which I presented at the last council meeting was as follows:

"That this council request the provincial government in any agreement reached with the federal government, to consider extending an old age pension of $30 per month to all citizens over the age of 65 years, without qualifications in respect to any other source of income."

The remark: "At present anyone who wants an old age pension must turn over everything they possess to get it" is attributed to me in error. My remarks were confined to "other sources of income."

"Miss America" Aspirant Met at Prairie City

(Winnipeg Tribune)

Georgina Patterson, recently crowned "Miss Northern British Columbia," passed through Winnipeg Tuesday evening on her way to Atlantic City, where she will be the sole representative of Canada for "Miss America" honors. She was accompanied by her mother.

Georgina, 19, pretty, personable, said she had no particular wish to practice on beauty contest judges. "I just walk up there," she declared, "and if they don't like me they can tell me to get off."

She expected to arrive in Atlantic City, Sept. 2, the eve of the pageant.

Here's the brief history of Georgina as a beauty queen.

She was selected as "Miss Prince George" at the annual contest held in that city this summer, entering it "just six hours before the final contest." Winning it, she was sent to Prince Rupert by the Prince George Junior Chamber of Commerce, where she gained the title of "Miss Northern British Columbia," Aug. 10.

Then came the chance to compete at Atlantic City. On hand to greet Georgina and her mother at the C.N.R. station were members of the Young Men's Section of the Board of Trade. C. H. MacKellie, president of the Young Men's Section, presented her with a gift.

WOMEN'S STATUS ROSE IN NIPPON

Activity in War Augurs Well For Increased Post-War Freedom

NEW YORK, Sept. 6 (AP)—Japanese now in the United States say the Nipponese woman's war activities on farm, factory and fighting line have done much to free her from her old position, which was virtually that of man's slave.

They expect to see her much more active in careers and politics in the post-war world and even to win the right to vote in the next 25 years. Those who express that opinion are chiefly identified with educational fields. None of them want to be quoted. They are in the United States as enemy aliens and under injunction not to talk.

But what they say sums up to this:

"The position of Japanese women already had begun to change before the war. During the war they produced most of the country's food and much of its weapons and even fought in battle. After the war a certain number of them can be expected to exert themselves in education, literature, art, birth control, the labor movement and the women's suffrage movement."

Before the war Japanese women were considered generally as the unappetizing, most restricted women in the modern world. Their whole lives were bent on serving and pleasing men.

Japanese Marriages

Their marriages generally were arranged by family or marriage broker and many of them saw their husbands only once or twice before marriage. Once married, a Japanese wife had to wait on her husband when he dressed, scrub him in the bath, bow low before him when he left and entered the house, walk behind him, carry his packages and be waiting with a sweet smile to welcome him when he returned from a party with the geisha girls.

A husband could divorce his wife on very slight pretext, which meant disgrace and social eclipse for her.

Women were expected to spend their time in household tasks, flower arrangement, tea ritual, visits to family and shrine. They were discouraged from going to movies and theatres and acquiring much education.

But gradually the picture began to change, partly as a result of Japan's activity in the outside world after the First Great War. Japan now has a number of women doctors, lawyers, teachers and dentists. Japanese women also have worked in agriculture, fishing, mining, traffic and industry. Figures of the 1930 census reveal that out of 32,059,850 women in the country, 10,589,403 were breadwinners and 354,792 of these were employers.

Women of the upper classes began to be active in social problems.

Within the last few years Japanese women formed philanthropic, social and suffrage associations and during a recent parliamentary election women speakers were in greater demand than men.

SHE IS ALWAYS READY FOR HER MEALS

Authorities say the difference between husky children and those who are poor eaters, underweight and nervous is often simply a matter of proper nourishment, especially an adequate supply of vitamins.

But vitamins alone are not enough. For authorities now agree that vitamins do not work alone. They work as a team with certain other food elements.

For this reason, thousands are switching to Ovaltine. Unlike mere "vitamin carriers," Ovaltine food beverage contains not only extra vitamins but nearly all the precious food elements needed for health and top vitality. These include Vitamins A, B<sub>1</sub> and D, the important minerals calcium, phosphorus and iron, high quality proteins and quick energy fuel-food—a combination of food elements authorities agree are needed for best results.

So, if your child is thin, nervous and not developing properly, why not turn to Ovaltine as thousands are doing. Three normal meals plus two glasses of Ovaltine a day give your child all the extra amounts of vitamins and minerals needed for health and top vitality.

NAGASAKI, major shipbuilding centre and port on the Jap island of Kyushu was the target of the second atomic bomb attack according to communique issued by Gen. Carl A. Spaatz, commander of the U.S. strategic air forces. The communique, which told of the dropping of the dread bomb on the city of 253,000 population, added that "crew members reported good results." Shown here is a view along a typical narrow street lined with flimsy buildings in a residential district of the city.
