William Shrubsall Leaves For Esquimalt to Start Training As Air Mechanic

Having enlisted in the Royal Canadian Navy as an acting leading air mechanic, William Shrubsall sailed last night on the Prince Rupert for Esquimalt where he will take three months' training preparatory to proceeding to the United Kingdom for a conversion course to naval aircraft with a view to serving later on a Canadian aircraft carrier. Shrubsall saw two years' active service in the recent war with the Royal Canadian Air Force. He is the first naval recruit to leave Prince Rupert for retraining.

Another prospective enlistment for the Royal Canadian Navy here is Kenneth Burgess whose application for enlistment as air mechanic, second class, has been received at H.M.C.S. Chatham and who will be called for training when a vacancy

Timely TERRACE Topics

The council of the Terrace and District Board of Trade met in the office of J. H. Smith Wednesday evening and dealt with the subject of advertising in a special edition of the Ketchikan Alaskan Chronicle. On or | about February 15 this paper plans to publish an edition of 110 pages. It will feature writeups covering all Alaska and northern and central British Columbia. Copies of this will be sent to all governors, senators, congressmen and other prominent persons throughout the U.S.A.; also to senators, members of parliament, members of legislatures and other influential people in Canada.

It was decided that the Terrace District would take one full page, this to be sponsored by business and professional people of the district who will be identified by signatures on a large advertisement on the page.
