Midlands Factories Are Operating Again Today

Northwestern England May Get Power Again Next Monday - Meantime Austerity Continues — Gas to Be Cut

LONDON—Nearly one million workers in England's industrial Midlands returned to the chilly factories and mills which reopened today after a two weeks' "black-out" caused by Britain's disastrous coal shortage. Next Monday industrial areas of northwestern England are expected to have electrical power again, Prime Minister Clement Attlee announced in Parliament today. He said that the situation was gradually improving. He was unable to say, however, when it would be possible to restore all services.

Week-end snowstorms that froze coal mining machinery and blocked highways and railroads brought official warning that country-wide gas cuts might be added this week to the daily five-hour ban on the use of electricity. Gas companies have been ordered to reduce coal consumption by ten percent for the next ten weeks.

First Year of Five-Year Postwar Plan Successful-Military and Political Readiness

MOSCOW (P) - Guided by Prime Minister Stalin's order of About 35 otter trawlers are the day, the Soviet Army today celebrated its 29th anniversary. Stalin announced that the Russian people had successfully fulfilled the first year of the fiveyear plan and that the Soviet Army "is fulfilling tasks of combat and training placed before it in conditions of peace."

Stalin made no mention of "enemies," atomic weapons, disarmament, "capitalistic encirclement" and gave a purely nationalistic interpretation of the Soviet's position in the world today.

The dictator's present day order, while instructing officers and men to continue study of warfare, placed more emphasis on political education.

"The most important condition of combat ability," the generalissimo said, "is firm military discipline based on high conscience and political education."

CEILINGS LIFTED OTTAWA-A lifting of the ceiling on electrical refrigerators by 10 percent and on stoves and furnaces by 71/2 per cent was amnounced today.

CANADA DENIES BARUCH ACCUSATION—Stating that he is "astounded" by U.S. Congress proposals to place atomic energy control in the hands of civilian rather than military leaders, Bernard Baruch, author of the U.S.-sponsored plan for world atomic control, appears before Senate members of the joint atomic committee in Washington. At the same session, Baruch expressed fear that leakage of atomic secrets might come from Canada, a statement which brought prompt and categorical statements from government leaders in Ottawa that Canadian security was just as tight and, perhaps, tighter than that in the United States. Mr. Baruch is speaking here to Sen. Bourke Hickenlooper (R), of Iowa, chairman of the committee.
