Briggs Steamship Southeastern To Call Here at End of Month

Maiden sailing of the 450-ton vessel Southeastern, which the Briggs Steamship Co. had hoped would enter the Prince Rupert-Alaska service on April 7, has been set back to the "end of the month," according to T. H. Gustafson, traffic manager for the line, who was a visitor in the city Wednesday.

The Southeastern is at present in a San Francisco shipyard, other northern points. Instead, the boat was in dry dock for six days before her propellors were on," he said.

W. F. Briggs, operator of the new line which is to start Prince Rupert as a recognized Alaskan shipping point, is at present in San Francisco, and will come north on the Southeastern when it is completed.

Mr. Gustafson, whose visit here was a brief one to talk over local shipping problems with George H. Stanbridge, the company's agent, has had plenty of experience with shipping problems. During the war he was an American lend-lease official with Guide Camp Tea, May 3, Mrs. the job of expediting shipments to Russia through Portland.

He left on last night's train for St. Paul, Minnesota, which will be a cargo consolidation centre for the line. At St. Paul, small shipments for Alaska merchants will be consolidated from manufacturing and wholesale plants throughout the American Cambrai Chapter Spring Tea, middle west and east and routed to Prince Rupert.

This consolidation will make Guild Tea, May 22, Mrs. Nora it possible to make "pool" shipments from the United States Job's Daughters' Tea, Mrs. to Prince Rupert at reduced load-lots" will be pooled at a St. Paul warehouse, and loaded as carloads for shipment here.

According to Mr. Gustafson, the job of contacting Alaskan merchants for pool orders to be shipped via Briggs Steamship Co. will fail to a man who served s an American officer at Prince Rupert during the war. He is John McDowell of St. Paul, who plans to establish at Juneau where he will carry of a brokerage business.

According to Mr. Gustafson, Mr. McDowell is carrying on a business despite the fact that he is blind, and is doing a "good
