TO BRING HOME U.S. WAR DEAD

Plan to Move More Than 200,000 From Far-Flung Burial Spots Across World

WASHINGTON (AP)—More than 200,000 of America's war dead who were buried where they fell on battlefields scattered about the world, are to be brought home or removed to permanent cemeteries, the army's quartermaster general estimates.

The movement was to have started earlier but was delayed because of scarcity of steel for caskets. Now the first ships are expected to start operating about August 1.

United States losses in all services were about 328,000 dead and the bodies of about 275,000 are identifiable and removable. The quartermaster general's branch, responsible for all services, expects next-of-kin to ask the return or transfer of 80 percent.

Only 61 percent of the dead in the First World War were brought home at request of kin. Reason for the larger number of requests now is believed to be the fact the bodies are scattered in such widespread fashion in remote places.

The war department will pay all costs up to the arrival of the body at place of interment and the next-of-kin may choose to have the final interment in a private cemetery at home, in a foreign country former home of the soldier or his next-of-kin, in a permanent United States cemetery overseas or in a national cemetery at home.

First movement is to be from the Henri Chapelle cemetery in Belgium.

Oil Replaces Coal As Locomotive Fuel

WELLINGTON, N.Z. (AP)—The New Zealand government is converting some of its larger locomotives to fuel oil in an attempt to restore railway timetables which have been restricted since the war owing to shortage of coal. Before the war New Zealand imported large quantities of coal from Australia but postwar shortage of shipping, mining strikes and the greater Australian demand have held back shipments. Endeavors to obtain supplies from United States and Canada have been only partly successful. Two locomotives converted to fuel oil burning as a trial have been so succesful that 20 more are to be converted. Eventually it is hoped to have sufficient burning fuel oil to enable full services to be restored.

Arriving at Arrowhead he could not unload the stock owing to ice conditions on the wharf. They finally arrived via Revelstoke, Golden, Lake Windermere, Cranbrook and Nelson.

Interest of Interior Town in Forthcoming Exhibition Here Is Aroused

Attention having been attracted through Daily News reports of the enthusiasm which is being manifested by many entrants in the forthcoming hobby and arts and crafts show here, the Women's Institute at Terrace is now gathering together and shipping down a large collection of exhibits, Mrs. J. T. Harvey, organizer of the show, announces. Included in the Terrace collection will be pottery made by Mrs. Greenwood, ornaments carved from alder roots by Frank Gavin as well as pictures, knitted lace and leather work fashioned by gifted people in that district. In addition, Major A. P. Vam Stolk is sending in three Emily Carr paintings—a water colors entitled "Cumshewa" (Queen Charlotte Islands) and "Totem Pole Kitwanga" and an oil on linen, "The Fantasy."

Meanwhile local additions to the list include the following:

Business and Professional Women's Club — Earrings and brooches made from Florida sea shells.

Thomas Boulter, table containing 975 separate pieces of wood.

Lee Gordon, penmanship display.

Joe Scott, fishing fly tying.

Mrs. James, fairisle sweaters.

G. A. Bate, pictures and posters.

Mary Cameron Simpson of Smithers, pastels.

Theo Collart, brass work.

Mrs. Ingvald Urseth, fancy work.

A group of High School students is being instructed by Miss Faure and G. A. Bate in art appreciation and will act as guides during the exhibition which has already reached such proportions that it will be necessary to use the entire top floor of the Civic Centre.

My Name Is Sayers, So's Mine, and Mine

KITCHENER (AP)—A coincidence in names that challenges the improbabilities of fiction turned up for George Sayers of Kitchener and Toronto.

Irish-born George, who served in the Canadian Army during the Second World War, met an acquaintance aboard ship while going on one of his leaves. After some conversation he asked the name of his new friend.

"George Sayers," the stranger replied.

"I didn't ask you my name—I want to know yours," the Kitchener man said a bit crossly.

But the other man's name was the same.

When the ship docked the Canadian soldier told his acquaintance he wanted to introduce him to a friend. The soldier's new-found acquaintance gasped when the introductions were made and found that the Belfast man also was named George Sayers. None of the three is related.
