According to an official of Queen Charlotte Airlines in Vancouver that company applied for a scheduled commercial air service licence on the Vancouver-Port Hardy-Sandspit-Prince Rupert run last July.

"Our application was protested to the board by C.P.A.L. on the grounds that they intended to apply for a similar licence. Apparently they have put the matter up to the board to decide between us. There is not sufficient business on the Vancouver-Prince Rupert run to justify two licences." the official said.

It is expected that the Air Transport Board will sit in Vancouver early in the new year.

The Prince Rupert Chamber of Commerce has been officially advised by Canadian Pacific Air Lines of its application having now been made for a licence to operate a scheduled service between Vancouver and Prince Rupert via Port Hardy and Sand-
