HONORED BY ROTARY CLUB

"It seems like you have to go away to find out how much you're appreciated," grinned Rotarian Fred Seadden Thursday afternoon in response to a presentation by club members prior to his leaving on an extended trip to England.

The presentation was made by Club President Dr. L. W. Kergin who informed Mr. Scadden that, since he was leaving his post as sergeant-at-arms, it was his duty to appoint a substitute during his four-months absence

Fifty faces turned pale Mr Scadden scanned the assemblage for a prospective successor. From the cringing mass, he chose William Terry, who will take temporary charge of the cherrywood mace and be responsible for arranging the flags in the Commodore banque

Fifth Commandment In Final Rehearsal

The cast of the one-act play, "The Fifth Commandment," had its final rehearsal last night under the discerning direction of Mr. Basil Frockter.

George McWhinney plays the part of a grandfather who thinks he is a law unto himself. Helen Hibbard is his granddaughter, also with a mind of her own but unlike her guardian, she 'loves music.' It is this feeling for music which actually starts the plot off on its way to a dramatic climax.

The travelling musicians enter the scene early in the play. Harry Seamans takes the part of the maestro who has slid from the top of his profession to the bottom. Bert Cameron is the violinist and unreformed thief. The role of the pianist is taken by Mr. Locke.

The play will be presented tonight in the United Church Hali. It will be part of an evening's entertainment which will also feature J. S. Wilson singing Irish songs of humor and Mrs. Brian Higgins, well known for ther vocal solos.

P. Bond, Mrs. J. Findley, Mrs. tional Film Board will be shown Colored films from the Naby R. E. Moore.
