St. Valentine's Day

AN CUPID, the sprightly tyke with the inse-J cure sarong—and quiver full of moony sighs once again mixes historical fact with fiction tomorrow to usher in St. Valentine's Day.

And he'll not be any more mixed up than most modern men's unromantic, dry - as - dust - probers into the antiquity of the ancient feast day of the world's swains and swooning maids.

Myriad stories have been woven by poet, historian—and promoters of lacy, lush greeting cards -about the origin of the bow-and-arrow-armed Kid's big day.

Some say St. Valentine was one of the eight historically - obscure saints, mentioned by early chroniclers. Others, more specific, say tomorrow is named after a Christian youth who in 270 A.D. was beheaded at the Flaminian Gate in Rome by the impetuous Emperor Claudius II.

Searchers among pagan lore claim the day coincides with the Feast of Lupercalia, a Roman festival of spring which was held in honor of the gods' own darlings-Pan and Juno.

The Romans, it is said, set aside fretting empire troubles and grisly toss-'em-to-the-lions circus amusements that day to fete lovers.

And, early Roman settlers in Britain carried on observance of the day. In Scotland, the 18th century lassie celebrated a type of "Sadie Hawkins? day Feb. 14. When "captured" by his fleetfooted Highlander miss, Jock remained "hers" for the balance of the year.

Naturalists, too, have an oar in the discussion. A few say that, in the balmier parts of the globe, birds were supposed to mate on Feb. 14 or 15.

However, history, fact or fiction-tomorrow's the day when shy approaches take a back seat and faint hearts take strength to quaver:

the sun comes back out of

ET US SAY some kind words about February and its spring-like days even if the odd one may be rainful. Few words of any kind are ever said about February. It is mainly noted for being the shortest month and most understanders have largely avoided trying to understand and comment on February. When winter has worn along as far as February, the able writers are too numb to feel anything, and the less able and therefore probably richer writers have deserted and gone south where there is no February. March is a much-discussed eccentric. April, May and June have natural literary advantages in being handy words to pronounce, and, even more important, to spell. Also they happen to come along at a time of year when writers feel good. Summer has had a considerable bulk of writing done on it, though this work has been unnecessary, for summer is summer, and the poets can't improve it. Even if the harvest of autumn were not good, Keats' effort would have redeemed it singlehanded. November is one of the most-talked-about months. with a reputation like the sporting-page notoriety of the bad man in a wrestling match. December and January are specials.

February is the month when

Leadership

IMHAT are the qualities that make for success in life? That is a question in which young people in particular are interested, and many books have been written on the subject, One American writer and lecturer has specialized in it and made quite a successand probably a good deal of money-out of telling people how to make friends and get on in life.

But he does not take into consideration that we are not all built alike. It would be a monotonous, not to say a wierd and confusing world if we all looked alike. If everybody were to cultivate an engaging smile and were forever trying to make friends with everybody else, we would have no privacy and we should only succeed in boring each other and becoming darn nuisances.

One prominent Canadian Industrialist has prescribed the primary qualities in man in the following order: Character, Personality, Imagination, Initiative, Drive, Ability, Know-

B. E. Morgan, Sawmill Operator, Sees Possibility of New Industry

A wood grinding mill and plant for the making of wallboard and other such products should be a "natural" at Prince Rupert in the opinion of B. E. Morgan, operator of the Billmor Spruce Mills sawmills at Porpoise Harbor, who was in town from his plant yesterday. Any kind of wood in any condition-even the branches-could be used, says Mr. Morgan. There would be employment for at least thirty men in the plant and twice that many in the woods getting out timber. There would be a ready market for anything that was produced. The cost of such a plant would be possibly $20,000 and Mr. Morgan considers it would be an excellent investment.
