Whifflets
From The Waterfront

The U.S. destroyer John W. Thomason, berthed at the government dock was a centre of attraction last evening. With warmth of the afternoon gone, walking made evening a pleasure, and there were many chats between those on the dock and the sailors aboard. This is the first time the destroyer has been at Prince Rupert.

Southeastern Here Shortly

SEATTLE— Briggs Steamship Co.'s motorship freighter Southeastern, recently reconverted at San Francisco for use in a new service which is being instituted between the British Columbia port and railhead of Prince Rupert and southeastern Alaska, is now in Seattle loading cargo and will said direct for Ketchikan. From there she will proceed to Prince Rupert to pick up a cargo for Alaska which was delivered to the coast over the northern line of the Canadian National Railways. Thereafter the Southeastern will run regularly between southeastern Alaska and Prince Rupert, taking in to that port fish and other commodities for transshipment to the United States and loading out supplies from the territory brought from the Middle West.

Phillip G. Briggs, head of the Briggs Steamship Co., and T. H. Gustafson, traffic manager, will be in Prince Rupert before the arrival of the southeastern there and will make the trip north. The Southeastern is due in Prince Rupert June 1. A group of members of the St. Paul Association of Commerce will also be in Prince Rupert at the same time in connection with the institution of the new trade movement through that port.

Air Service Announced

VANCOUVER—A new daily air service from Vancouver to Prince Rupert via Port Hardy and Sandspit will be inaugurated on June 15 by Canadian Pacific Airlines, according to an announcement here today by Jack Barber, C.P.A.'s district traffic manager. This new air service brings to three the number of C.P.A. routes flown out of Vancouver, including daily flights to Nanaimo on Vancouver Island, and to Cariboo, Peace River, Yukon and Alaska points, and provides additional direct air connection to any point in America for north country residents.

Since last November Canadian Pacific Airlines has flown triweekly trips from Vancouver to Port Hardy and commencing June 1 a similar service will be extended to Sandspit. On June 15, however, the service will be daily from Vancouver and will extend to Prince Rupert.

Aircraft to be employed on the new route will include Lodestars and DC-3's calling at Port Hardy and Sandspit, and a Canso amphibian craft will be used for the hop from Sandspit to Prince Rupert. Total flying time for the trip from Vancouver to Prince Rupert, including intermediary stops, will be approximately four hours.

COMPENSATION IN AUTO ACCIDENTS

Motorists Will Not Have to Pay Fee—Insurance Companies Assume Cost

KELOWNA, (CP) — Attorney General Wismer announced here that insurance companies would assume the cost of unsatisfied judgments fund under the new amendments to the motor vehicle and insurance acts.

This will mean that motorists in the province will not be required to pay the proposed one dollar assessmen to establish a fund for the payment of compensation to persons injured in accidents by persons not financially responsible.

Mr. Wismer deplored rumors of a danger of the disintegration of the coalition government. He claimed there is complete harmony within the government ranks.

COLD WEATHER HOLDS SEEDING

WINNIPEG — Unseasonably cool weather, combined with high winds and scattered showers, have been general over the prairies during the past week, according to the weekly crop report of the Department of Agriculture of the Canadian National Railways. The main requirement of the moment is for warmer weather to ensure even germination and for a general rain to offset the drying effect of the high winds and reduce the danger from soil drift damage.

Wheat seeding is from 50 to 100 per cent completed and, by next week-end, this year's wheat crop should all be in the ground. Seeding of coarse grain is also progressing, ranging from 20 to 95 per cent completed.

The Okanagan Valley reports slightly cooler weather with showers during the past week. An increase is now expected in the Cherry, apricot, prune and peach crops. A decrease of 20 to 25 per cent is expected in the apple crop.

Leeches breed in swampy places in the tropics.
