AUTO CAMP HERE

MITH TRAFFIC of outside cars into Prince Ru-VV pert over the Skeena River Highway reaching sizeable proportions this season-more and more cars from all parts of the continent now being seen daily—the opportunity for the establishment of an auto camp here becomes increasingly apparent. Almost every tourist arriving by road inquires: where is the auto camp? Its absence is one of the most obvious accommodation lacks here. One of these days somebody is going to realize the need and opportunity of an auto camp here and is going to do something about it. Possibly, it will be somebody from outside rather than somebody already here. Prince Rupert business people seem hardly highway-conscious yet.

ALBERNI BUILDS HOTEL

DLANS ARE BEING got out for a new $250,000 community-built hotel at Port Alberni where a pulp mill is going in, a plant not nearly as large as that which is to be established at Prince Rupert by the Celanese Corporation of America. It will be a completely fireproof building containing eighty rooms, ballroom and private banquet room.

If Port Alberni can get going on a new hotel like this, it would seem that something likewise at Prince Rupert might be done. The need can be no greater there than here.

CHURCHILL AND RUPERT

THEY HAVE STARTED filling the 250,000bushel grain elevator at Churchill on remote

Hudson's Bay again and ships will be moving in there by August to take it out. This raises the old question-what is it that Churchill has that Prince Rupert has not and permits grain shipping from there while Prince Rupert's grain house goes empty, idle and ghostlike year after year? Certainly it is not that Churchill is a more accessible or safer or better-equipped port than Prince Rupert. Last year they told us that grain could not be shipped through Prince Rupert because it was wet wheat and drying facilities were not adequate. We are wondering what excuse they will be able to hatch up this year.

Wartime Houses

Heights subdivisions, it would be of little value to the city, since it wished to have them torn

The council met in committee of the whole after the session to discuss the proposals and wil meet again in open session tonight, possibly to give a decision.

Sale price of the houses here could not be estimated by Mr. Back, who told the council that this could not be determined until after the signing of the agreement, when an appraiser would be sent in to set values.

Down payment to a tenant purchasing a wartime house would be 10 per cent of its appraised sale price, he said, and if the tenant remained in the house for five years, he would receive a rebate of 171/2 per cent of the price. Interest payment would be at the rate of 41/2 per cent.

amortized over a 20 year period. This is made possible to enable the purchaser to pay for the house on a rental cost basis.

"We want to arrive at a value hat the average man can aford-not an inflated value," Mr. Back asserted. "There will be no high pressure tactics. If a man wants to buy, he can buy, otherwise he can continue to rent. We are also trying to keep the payments down to the present rent

The aldermen considered the offer to sell the Conrad Street ment as undesirable.
