VANCOUVER RAIN

VANCOUVER-Vancouver people virtually waded to work today after a 1.4 inch rainfall since yesterday. Hundreds of men were at work clearing catch basins to carry away the melting slush. It is doubtful if the rain was sufficient to improve very materially the water level in reservoir lakes of the hydro-electric plants. More freezing weather is predicted for tonight and tomorrow.

daylight saving. Mr. Smith expressed fear that Stewart would become ghost town unless the government did something fast. Closing down of the Silbak-Premier mine had steadily decreased the population, he told the House.

The House was asked by Mr. Smith to urge the federal government to build a road into mine which would employ 250 men if operated.

The Atlin member contended that mining was one of the best developers of any area and the Oilswhole province would benefit.

Private capital would not touch the area in which this mine was located until a road was built.

Mr. Smith also asked for a 58.3 mile link from Atlin to the Alaska Highway, 13 miles inside the Yukon Territory, to develop his constituency which he called 'a 'war casualty."
