Union steamer Camosun, Capt. John Boden still in command, although he had expected to be off on a three months' vacation, arrived in port at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon from Vancouver and waypoints with a far-sized list of passengers and good freight cargo, sailing at 11 p.m. for Alice Arm and Stewart whence she will return here tomorrow morning to sail at noon for Vancouver. At 6:30 last evening, another Union Steamship Co. liner, the Coquitlam, Capt. Harry McLean, returned to port from the Queen Charlotte Islands and sailed at 8 p.m. for Vancouver. The Coquitlam took some forty passengers south from here.

Capt. J. W. Kerr, supervisor of nautical services, Ottawa, and chief radiotelegraph inspector W. Katon, visited the Queen Charlotte Islands at the week-end, returning here yesterday and transferring to the Camosun last night to make the round trip to Alice Arm and Stewart and thence to Vancouver tomorrow.

B. C. Steamship freighter, Alaska Prince, Capt. Tom Garrick, arrived in port Sunday from Vancouver. She is unloading 300 cases of powder for the Silver Mine in the interior and general freight at Watson Island and Port Edward before going south.

The British Columbia salmon pack, to last week, totalled up to more than 1,482,560 cases. To date, the herring catch is in excess of 52,900 tons, most of which has been shipped to mainland reduction plants.

Hooking Up New Plant

Within a matter of a very short time (General Manager Thomas B. Black of the Northern B.C. Power Co. would not commit himself to the Daily News as to whether it would be ten days or two weeks) new power will be going into the city lines from the first of three 800 kilowatt diesel generating units being installed at the dry dock power house. For a couple of hours early Sunday morning and during tying in the line from the dry dock to the Cow Bay sub-station, there was a shutting off power in most of the city.

With the first machine now installed, parts for the second are being awaited as well as the third machine itself. The units are coming from the Old Country.

By the end of the year, it is hoped the whole installation will have been completed. Although again Mr. Black would not commit himself as to definite dates.

Mr. Black, asked by the Daily News yesterday, admitted that, if present cold dry weather continues, a dropping of water levels behind the Falls River and Shawatlans Lake hydro-electric plants might be anticipated but there was no falling of levels as late.

First Masset White Child

Mrs. Emily Macdonald, Mother of Local Doctor, Was Identified With Very Early Days

First white child to be born on the Queen Charlotte Islands and one of the rapidly diminishing number of links with the early Christian missionizing days of the north coast of British Columbia, Mrs. Emily C. Macdonald died suddenly in Nanaimo General Hospital after a brief illness.

Mrs. Macdonald was the daughter of the late Archdeacon W. H. Collison, noted early missionary of the diocese of Caledonia; the widow of the late Dr. D. J. Macdonald, for thirty years missionary doctor at the native village of Kincolith on the Naas River, and mother of Dr. John A. Macdonald.

Dr. Macdonald left by plane today for Qualicum Beach, Vancouver Island, where his mother had resided on her farm home for several years since leaving the north and where the funeral will take place.

Mrs. Macdonald was born 72 years ago at Masset where her father was the first missionary of the Anglican Church. The epic account of his adventures in carrying the Gospel to the aborigines was told in his famous book "In the Wake of the War Canoe" which, now out of print, is a literary treasure.

With no educational facilities in the north coast area at that time she, like her brothers and sisters, was sent to England to be educated. Returning to this part of the coast in her late teens as a missionary teacher, she was at first stationed at Kincolith and then, with her brother, the late W. E. Collison, by this time a missionary, went to Masset. Later she was a member of the staff of the old Ridley Home for girls at Metlakatla. She had also taught at the upper Naas villages of Greenville and Aiyansh.

A talented pianist and organist, Mrs. Macdonald, during the teaching days of her young womanhood, played a leading part in the development of the culture of music among the natives.

In 1909, deceased was married at Kincolith to the late Dr. D. J. Macdonald and lived there until 1939 when the doctor retired and they went to Qualicum to make their home. In 1946 Dr. Macdonald passed away at Qualicum.

The children of Mrs. Macdonald, besides the son at Prince

Rupert, Dr. John A. Macdonald, are Hugh Macdonald of Qualicum, Mrs. Jack (Jean) Macmillan, Qualicum; Colin H. Macdonald, mining engineer at the Duthie mine, Smithers, and Dr. Arthur G. Macdonald of Qualicum.

Brothers of Mrs. Macdonald are Herbert Collison of Mill Bay, Vancouver Island, who was with the Royal Canadian Navy during World War II; Arthur Collison of Victoria and Max Collison of Smithers. Sisters are Miss Alice Collison of Qualicum Beach and Mrs. Alfred (Elsie) Etinett of Seattle.

Arriving at Prince Rupert from the south on the Princess Louise this morning were Miss J. Matsuba, F. F. Alberti, A. L. Clark, E. Olson, R. T. Hayashi, W. P. Clark, Mrs. J. E. Hooker, E. V. Gray, L. L. Churchfield, O. J. Evans.
