Help Nature To Fight Them Off

MR. AND MRS. GENERAL CHENNAULT-Maj.-Gen. Claire L. Chennault, famed wartime commander of the Flying Tigers, and Miss Anna Chan, a Chinese newspaper writer, shown here together in 1945, were married in a surprise ceremony at the general's home in Shanghai. Miss Chan, daughter of a former Chinese consul in San Francisco, met the general during the war when she covered his headquarters as a reporter for the Central News Agency.

JET-PROPELLED FLYING WING IN SUCCCESFUL FLIGHT—England's jet-propelled "Flying Wing," the AW-52, made its first successful flight from Bitteswell Airfield, England. It has a wingspread of 90 feet, with a rudder at each end, and cost opproximately $800,000 to build. Its speed is still a ministry of supply secret. Here spectators inspect the 'Flying Wing."
