A too-intelligent horse lost bettors thousands of dollars Lingfield races in England-because he had learned a few hours earlier a short cut from the ercise gallop in the morning.

Another story going the rounds at Lingfield concerns Mr. "A" who found a roll of 15-£ notes ($4) and was taking them to the office of the clerk of the course when-Mr. "B" accosted him with "Don't do that, there's the man who dropped them" pointing to-Mr. "C" who, questioned by Mr. "A" about the amount. replied: "I don't know, I've had such a good day. But I dropped part of the roll." Satisfied, Mr. "A" handed over the money. Five minutes later it was announced over the public address system that a wad of £1 notes had been lost in the members enclosure and "would the finder please return them?"
