To Study Defences—

U.S. Senators Invited Here

Three United States senators heading for Alaska October 14 or 15 from Seattle, may visit Prince Rupert on an inspection of defense needs and conditions. It was learned here this week that they are being invited by the Chamber of Commerce to come here to study the strategic importance of this port from the defense standpoint.

The subcommittee of the senate military affairs committee is headed by Senator Lester Hunt (D-Wyoming) and includes Senators Saltonstall (R-NY) and Wayne Morse (R-Oregon) who won fame as a west coast long-shore arbitrator. He is former dean of law at the University of Oregon school of law.

An invitation to the committee to visit both Rupert and Ketchikan was sent to Senator Morse by Editor William L. Baker of the Ketchikan Chronicle, former Oregon friend of the senator, who replied that if time allows, they will make the stops suggested.

Death By Drowning

A coroner's jury yesterday found the death of James Arthur Jennings due to accidental drowning in the vicinity of the Prince Rupert Drydock between the hours of 10 p.m. and midnight Tuesday. No suggestion of foul play came up during evidence. Jennings was known to have been suffering from chronic bronchitis for a long time. Capt. McColl of the Arrow Post, where Jennings was employed as cook, said he had had the scar which was found on his head previous to the time he had left the ship the night before.

Heavy Gale Felt Here

Wind velocities up to 38 miles per hour from the south were recorded at the Digby Island weather station between 5 a.m. and 6 a.m. today in the heaviest storm so far this fall. Rainfall during the 24-hour period ending at 4 a.m. today was .55 of an inch. Wind velocities seemed much more intense on this side of the harbor.

But Little Damage Reported After Last Night's 36-Mile Blow

Little damage was done in the city. A woodshed is reported to have been blown down and the glass of a door in the Prince Rupert Hotel broken when the wind slammed a door. Only one or two telephones had been reported out this morning. Telephone lines between Vancouver and Prince George were knocked out at 8:12 this morning, blocking off CBC broadcasts over station CFPR until 10:35 a.m. when lines were in use again for five minutes. They went out again at 10:40 and stayed out until 11:15 when they came in again. Reception was poor after that. Baseball fans found many interruptions while listening to the fourth world series game between New York Yankees and Philadelphia.

Installation of the breakwater has brought more boats to tie up at the new floats at Fairview. None received damage due to the storm last night and this morning.

TORY SHOWDOWN—

Anscomb Resigns Leadership In Surprise Move But Runs Again

VANCOUVER, (CP)—Finance Minister Herbert Anscomb, in a stunning manoeuvre, resigned last night as leader of the British Columbia Progressive-Conservative party but called for a leadership vote today and announced he would be fighting to regain the post he has held for more than four years.

Mr. Anscomb's move, which came at a special night session at the party's annual convention, caught both opponents and supporters by surprise. The meeting broke up minutes later. The fight for leadership is between Anscomb and W. A. C. Bennett, Coalition member for South Okanagan.

The move to oust from the party leadership one of the top cogs in B.C.'s Liberal-Progressive Conservative coalition began some time ago.

Opponents of Mr. Anscomb, chiefly members of the Young Progressive Conservatives, assailed the Minister of Finance for his liquor interests—he has directorates in brewing and wine companies—and is blamed for a drop in the party's prestige. And he was accused yesterday by Gordon Cameron of Victoria, president of the B. C. Progressive Conservative Association, of blocking a plan to unite the federal and provincial organizations.

"My term of office as president," Cameron told the 650 delegates, "has been a total loss of time and money."

For two hours the rebels battled for a motion to force a vote on the leadership. Anscomb supporters tried to stem off the tide with a confidence amendment. Anscomb, in a terse speech, said: "I am satisfied that I can prove to you tomorrow that I have carried out that responsibility as you expected it to be carried out. And I tell you that tomorrow I shall be nominated again for that post."

Sees End of Trade Barriers

VANCOUVER — Trade Minister C. D. Howe said yesterday the "worst" of the sterling area restrictions on Canadian trade may be over soon.

In a speech stressing the need to steer a cautious economic course through current international complications, Mr. Howe emphasized the greater ability of the United Kingdom and other sterling countries to earn dollars. He told the Board of Trade that as a result of this increase in the dollar earning and dollar saving policies of sterling countries, "there is reason to hope that the worst of the sterling restrictions on Canadian trade will soon be over."

Mail Delivery Being Studied

Establishment of a letter carrier service in Prince Rupert has been under consideration for some time and an up-to-date investigation of the matter has just been completed by field officers and is now being studied in detail by officers of the department, says a letter which has been received by P. H. Linzey, secretary of the Prince Rupert Chamber of Commerce, from Hon. Edouard Rinfret, Postmaster General.

As soon as a decision has been made, the Chamber will be advised, the letter adds.

Otherwise, no indication has been given as to the nature of the report although it has been suggested that it may be favorable.

Whitey Ford is Hero of Today's Baseball Classic

Philadelphia 123 456 789—R H E
New York 000 000 002—2 7 1
200 003 00x—5 8 2
Miller, Konstanty, Roberts and Seminick;
Ford, Reynolds and Berra.

NEW YORK, (CP)—Whitey Ford, 21-year-old rookie southpaw, won New York Yankees their thirteenth World Series title today with a 5 to 2 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies for a four-game sweep before 68,098 fans. It was the lowest scoring series in history. It was also the sixth time the Yankees have made a clean sweep of the series.

With two runs in, two men on bases and two out in the ninth, Aule Reynolds, winner of the second game of the series, relieved Ford and put down a Phillies' uprising by striking out Stan Lopata, a pinch hitter.

It was a two-run error by the left fielder, Gene Woodling, that spoiled Ford's shut-out.

Yogi Berra smashed a 365-foot home run into right field seats in the sixth inning to help the Yanks nail down this clincher.

The Yanks routed rookie Bob Miller in the first inning with a two-run blast.

Reliever Jim Konstanty held the champs in check until the sixth when Berra's homer, a hit batsman, Bobby Brown's triple and a fly ball accounted for three runs.

Only in the ninth did the Phillies get after Ford, one of the youngest, if not the youngest, winning pitchers of any World Series. He was nicked for a lead-off single by Willie Jones and hit Del Ennis on the right leg before anybody was out.

Dick Sisler forced Ennis a second and was taken out for a pinch-runner, Ken Johnson. After Granny Hamner had struck out, Ford was only one away from finishing the ball game. But it was not to be.

Andy Seminick's long fly to Gene Woodling was, apparently, lost in the sun and fell out of Gene's glove for a two-run error, both Jones and Johnson scoring.

After Mike Goliat had pumped a single to left, Casey Stengel decided to lift the kid and call in Reynolds. The big crowd gave Ford a tremendous ovation as he walked to the dug-out.

So the series will go down in the books as another sweep for the all-powerful Yankees. It was their thirteenth win in seventeen series and this may have been the richest of them all.

This was the only game of the series that was not decided by one run, breaking the Phil's string of seven straight one-run series losses that date back to 1915.

LOWER MINIMUM

VANCOUVER — Two youths were found guilty of possessing intoxicants and the only remaining question was the size of the fine. "Fifty dollars minimum," said the prosecutor. The magistrate reached back into his memory and called for a copy of the statute. The boys were relieved when they were fined the minimum of $25.
