The Graham Island town which has been spelled generally, and incorrectly, as Massett, hereafter will be officially known as Masset by the Post Office, in order to eliminate confusion with another British Columbia town.

Actually, the Masset spelling is correct but it has generally been disregarded by custom in favor of the double-T ending for many years.

Recently, however, the post office ruled that the correct spelling should be used in order to end confusion with the southern town of Merritt, which it often resembles when written in longhand.
