Party Has No Funds

By WILLIAM STEWART
Canadian Press Staff Writer

QUEBEC, Q.—A new style in campaigning has been introduced in Quebec by the union of electors contesting July 28 provincial elections.

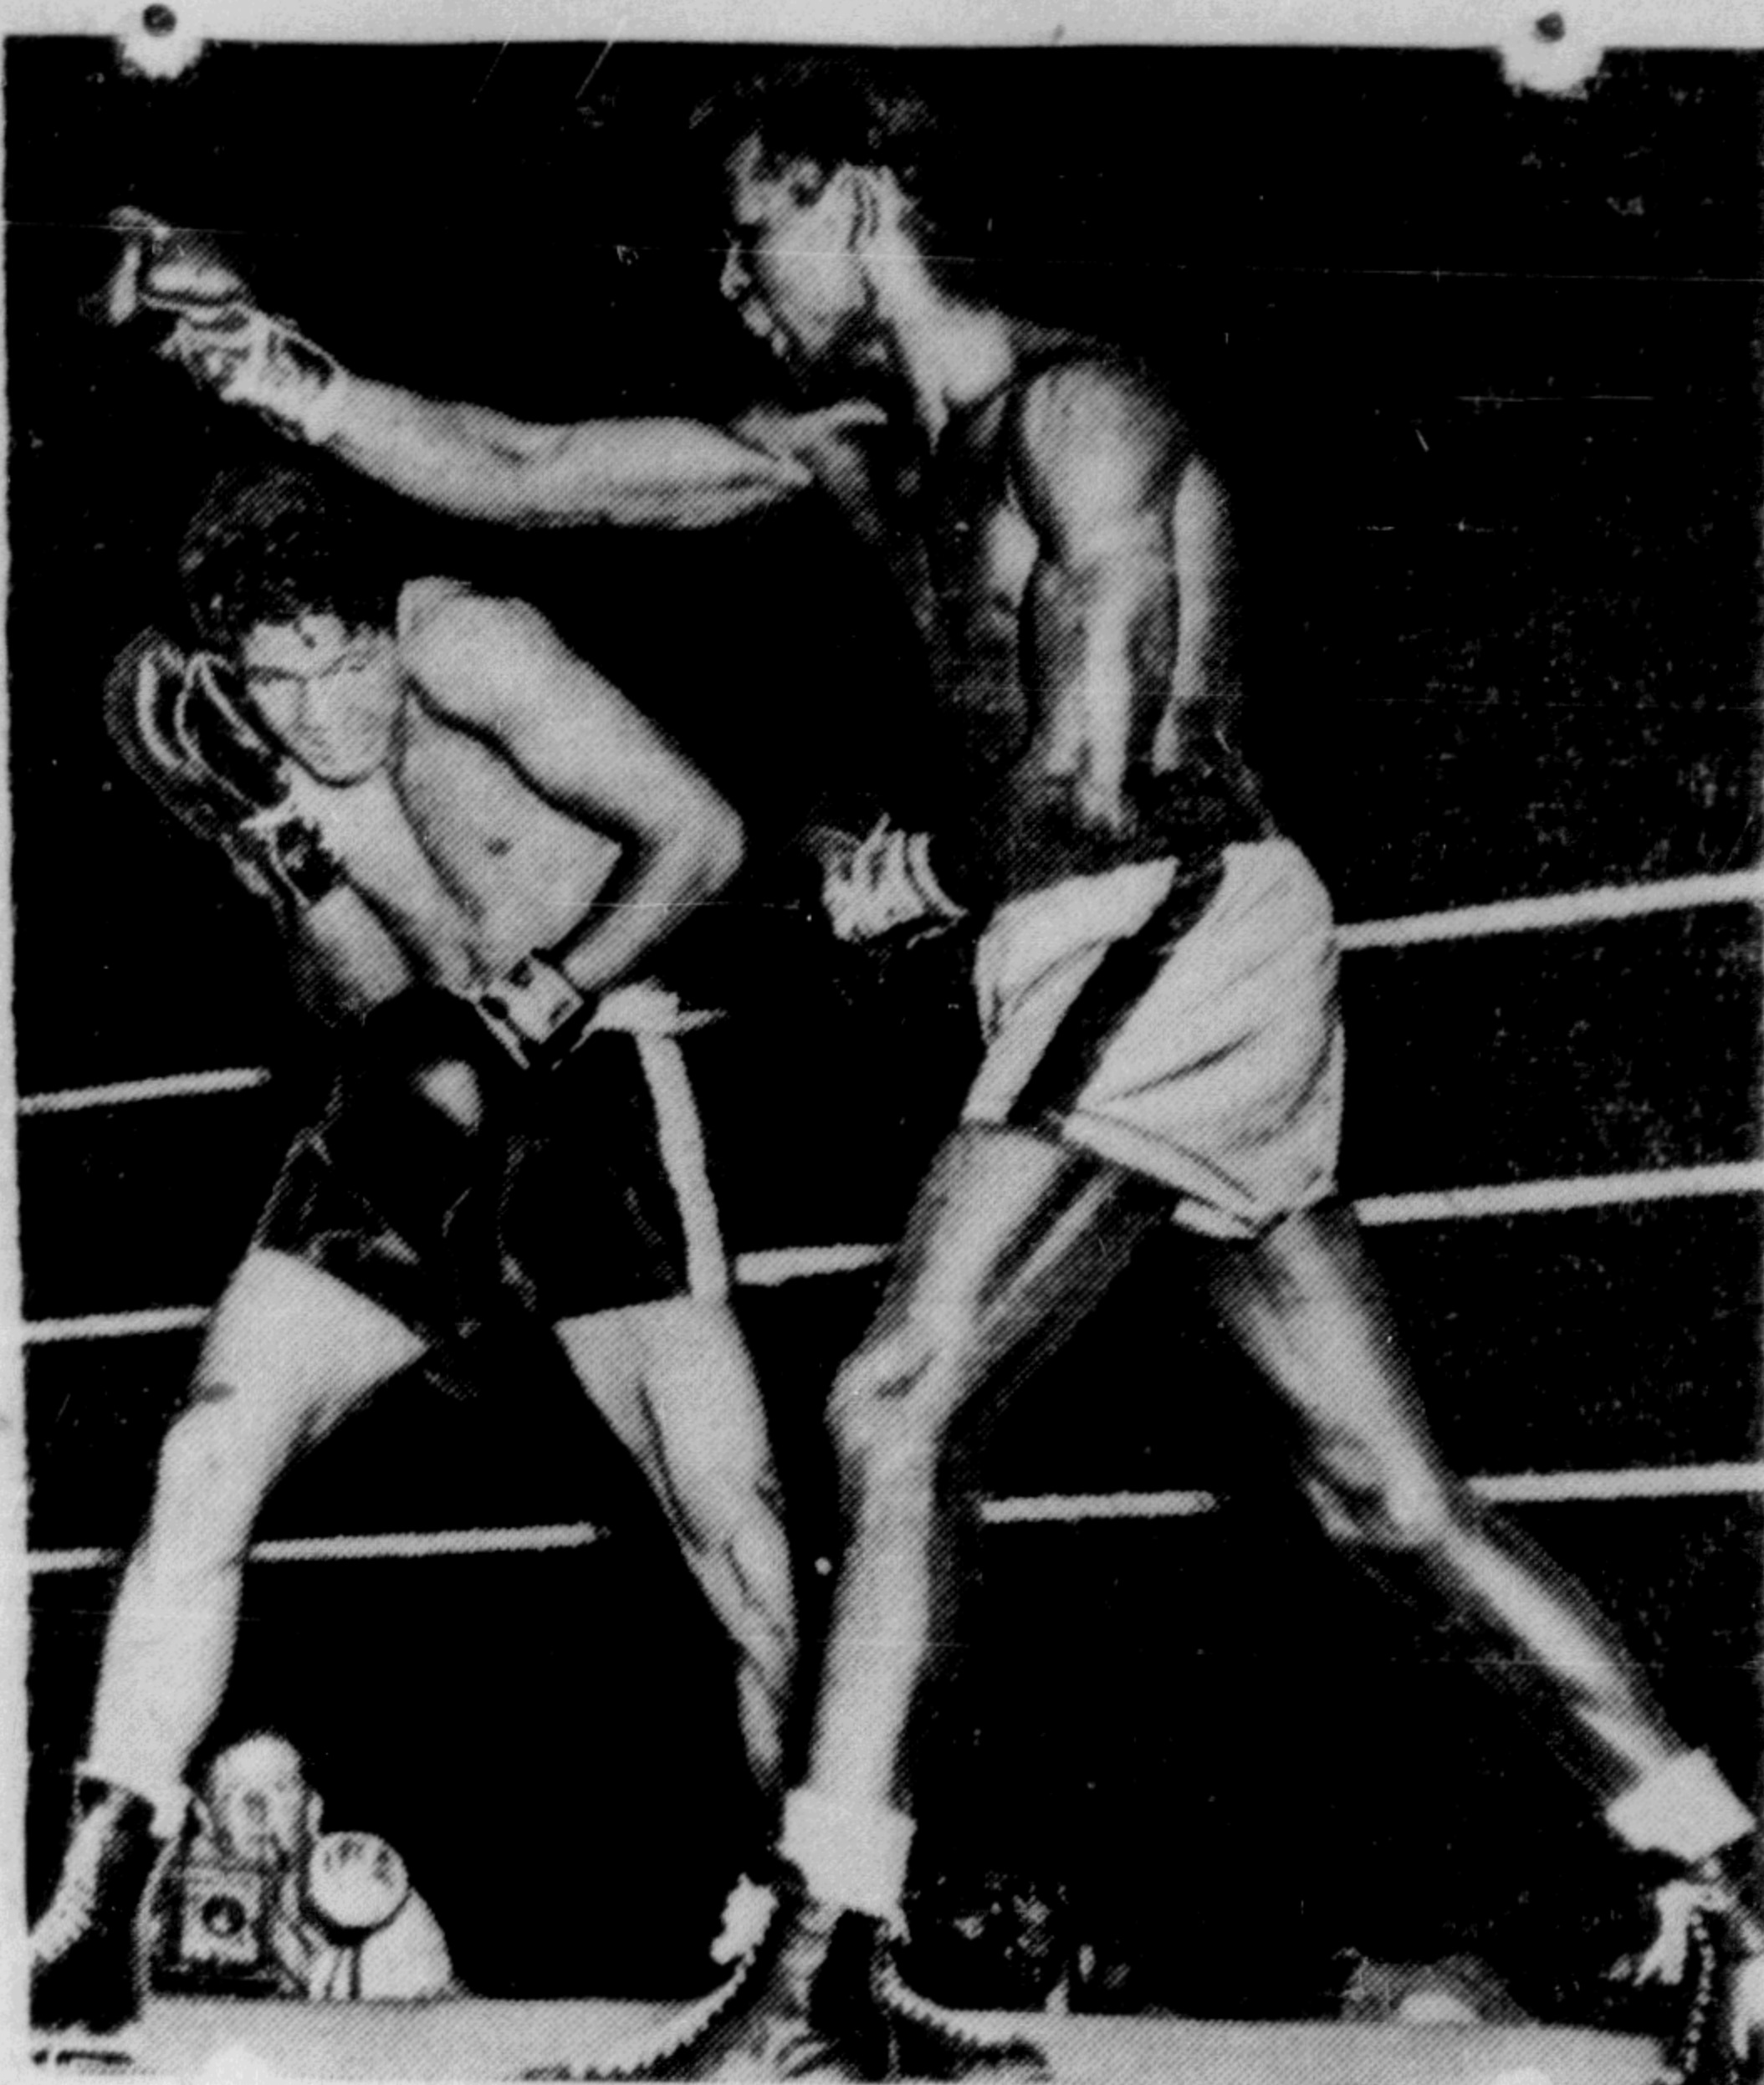

The union of electors seeking the application of Social Credit principles in Quebec boasts that it has neither election fund nor election machine.

Its speakers pay their own travelling expenses, get lifts from meeting to meeting as they can, and save hotel and meal costs by putting up in the homes of supporters.

The union is led in its bid for Legislative Assembly seats by 62-year-old J. Ernest Gregoire, Professor of Political Economy at Laval University, former Legislature members and former mayor of Quebec City.

General direction of the movement in the province is in the hands of Louis Even who runs from Montreal its weekly newspaper "Vers Demain" with the help of Mrs. Gilberte Cote-Mercier, the union's provincial organizer.

The group is making little use of the familiar banners, brass bands, flags and parades. The union claims that one way or another the voter has to foot the bill for such display.

So far the union seems to be making its way with its own methods of raising expense money which include passing the hat at meetings.

"Le Chapeau du Credit Social va Eraser la Maudite Caisse Electorale (the Social Credit hat will beat accursed electoral funds)," its speakers tell their listeners.

Its promise of a $20 monthly dividend for every man, woman and child in Quebec, which would mean a lot for the larger Quebec families, is part of the Union of Electors' plan to achieve greater distribution of the things in store windows.

The union also proposes monthly dividends of $60 for everyone on their 60th birthday and similar pensions for blind, invalids and the helplessly needy.

The Social Credit movement had its start in Quebec about 15 years ago. It became active in politics in 1944 when the Union des Electeurs ran a dozen unsuccessful candidates in the provincial election.

In 1946, a Union of Electors candidate won the House of Commons seat for Pontiac in a federal by-election.

The union is making its bid for administrative power in Quebec this year with candidates in the running for all 92 Legislative Assembly seats.
