Now Planning for Carnival

Preliminary Arrangements Set In Motion at Meeting Last Night

Preliminary arrangements for the annual civic centre carnival, which is to consist largely of indoor attractions this year with special emphasis on revival of the annual exhibition and horticultural show, occupied the attention of the board of directors of the Prince Rupert Civic Centre Association at a meeting last night.

Evidence and exhibits of the royal commission inquiry into the dispatch of the two-battalion Canadian force do not in themselves show that the Canadian government received any clear-cut warning that war with Japan was an early possibility.

Col. George A. Drew, now Premier of Ontario, who was opposition counsel in the inquiry, charged three days before the force sailed that the government had received explicit warning that war was coming.
