WATCH VITAL SPOTS

MOST OF THE MEMBERS OF THE UNITED NATIONS HAVE ENDORSED THE POSITION TAKEN BY THE SECURITY COUNCIL IN REGARD TO THE AGGRESSION AGAINST SOUTH KOREA.

That is, more than 40 nations have agreed that the Communists from the north have committed a flagrant aggression and that the United States was justified in ordering land, sea and air forces into action to help defend the territory attacked.

But a careful reading of the replies to the UN makes it clear that only a few nations have so far agreed to back up Uncle Sam with support other than words.

Broadly speaking, only the U.S.A., the British Commonwealth and one or two others have indicated that they would share the actual fighting, if necessary. And even the British Commonwealth contributions are limited, to date, to sea and air forces.

MEANWHILE IN KOREA ITSELF the U.S. ground forces have met a sharp initial reverse.

As this is written, there is no sign that the South Korean armies have recovered their will to resist the attackers, from North Korea. As the purpose of the American intervention, by land, was to provide the core around which the South Koreans could rally the task of restoring the lines to where they were before the attack is going to be anything but a walkover.

THE GENERAL PICTURE therefore seems to me to have some bright spots — and some very dark ones, indicating great danger. On the bright side is this:

The overwhelming majority of the nations of the world have taken a moral stand against aggression. It is a far cry since the dark days of the thirties when Hitler's ambassador to Britain was calmly eating lunch with the British Foreign Minister while Germany was gobbling up Austria; and while U.S. policy was strict neutrality and "cash on the barrelhead" for supplies to all sides alike.

SOMETIMES WE ARE TOO close to the turmoil of history to see the pattern in it. But there is a pattern in it — which now plainly says that, bit by bit, mankind is establishing world law.

One great step was when the UN ordered cessation of the Dutch attempt to reconquer Indonesia as a colony — with the result that over 77 million people soon became free.

Another, greater step, was when the President of the United States, without waiting for a declaration of war by Congress, ordered into action the only forces close enough to the District Forester M. W. Gormley and Assistant District Forester J. C. Payne returned this afternoon by plane from the Queen Charlotte Islands where they have been on official business.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Armstrong are sailing tomorrow night on the Camosun for a holiday trip to Vancouver and Nanaimo.

Mrs. W. M. Smith and sons, Gary and Roy, after a visit in the city, sailed by the Camosun last night on their return to their home at Massett.

aggression in Korea to do anything to stop it.

THE DANGERS IN THE Korean war are equally evident. The attack there could never have been made if not endorsed in advance by the Stalin government in Moscow. Hence it could be just a "feeler" to see how the UN and especially U.S.A. would react. Or it could be the first of a whole series of "come on" aggressions, designed to get the western powers bogged down in a dozen campaigns — far from the vital centres, loss of which could lose a world war.

On page 177 of his latest book Mr. Churchill reveals that in January 1941 he wrote "If Japan goes to war there is not the slightest chance of holding Hong Kong or relieving it. We must avoid frittering away our forces on untenable positions."

I think every intelligent person in the western world should read and ponder those words today.
