Information that the site of the Indian School at Sunnyside would be a favorabe location for a new public school was contained in a letter from Sunny-4:45—Young Man With a Song side read to members of the Prince Rupert Public School

Board last night. Previous information obtained by members of the board had indicated the site would not be favorable, terrain being poor. In fact, not many locations could be found that would prove satisfactory as a new school site. The present school, a former church, is in poor shape and is situated on undesirable property, it was felt.

The board decided the only method by which a decision could be reached would be by visiting the site at some future date. In the meantime, the secretary was instructed to acknowledge the letter.
