

or evening and will continue until Sunday afternoon. The weather office on Digby Island this morning, stated a storm is developing 500 miles west of Prince Rupert and will bring southeast winds at 50 and sixty miles per hour to most of the British Columbia Coast including waters contiguous to the Queen Charlotte Islands and Prince Rupert. Temperatures have steadily increased since the wet weather began a few days ago. Yesterday at 4 p. m. the mercury stood at 43 above dropping to 34 above at 4 o'clock this morning. The weatherman predicted similar readings for the week-end.

HER ROYAL HIGHNESS TAKEN FOR A SLEIGH RIDE—Fit for a princess is this sleigh pulled by young skaters at the winter carnival of the Ice club of Greater Winnipeg. And in the sleigh is Her Royal Highness of Winter, Princess Kewatinook Oche, from The Pas, Man. She was candidate for the title, "Queen of the North" at the Northern Manitoba Trapper festival.

Ray Reflects and Reminisces

If you possess a sweep ticket for the Grand National it's worth ten shillings as the date draws near. Your chance of having the lightning hit you is just as good as the next fellow's. The ten shillings would have been spent, anyhow, in some other way. We gamble, in one way or another, every day of our cautious lives.

A Scottish court rules that unborn children are legally alive. An important point, where some inheritance cases are concerned. It allowed four children, born within seven months of their uncle's death, to share in a $283,400 estate. The fortune was left to brothers and sisters "and any of their descendants alive at the time of my death."

Hollywood is giving an untrue and damaging picture of American life, says Norman Cousins, editor of the Saturday Review of Literature. In different parts of the world he has noted harmful reaction to films, and writes: "We don't all work in swanky buildings with private offices, large enough to house a small army. We don't all live in plush duplex apartments with elaborate cocktail bars and retinues of servants, don't all sleep in king size beds with silk topsheets, nor do we all arise languidly at noon for breakfast in bed. Some of us find something to do with our hands other than to drape them around long cocktail glasses, expensive cigarette holders, or smoking revolvers. Some of us even read a book occasionally and find something to talk about other than a scheme to murder our wives or our business partners. And, while we like to hold our own in discussion or debate, it isn't true that the only rebuttal is a sock on the jaw."

Knowing our good neighbors, we just grin and let it go, over here in Canada, and it's doubtless the same in England. But not so in Europe and elsewhere. It is said of Winston Churchill, now very fully occupied, that he has never mastered mathematics. Whatever he learned of arithmetic, has been done the hard way. Even to this day, say close friends, he sometimes refers to decimals as "those d---d little dots."

Hundreds of cases of good celery were destroyed at Toronto recently, the reason appearing somewhat obscure. One of today's world problems is providing enough food. Shiploads have been sent overseas, not as trade goods, but contributions to the needy. Why should anything, anywhere, anytime, in the shape of provisions, be squandered, for breakfast in bed. Some of us a Canadian who cannot afford celery would give it a warm welcome.

Once, the prairie was reckoned the home of the buffalo and not much else. Sympathy was felt for the lone settlers. Today, western wheat feeds millions and lakes of oil will flow in pipes across Alberta and Saskatchewan through to the great consuming centres. You never can tell!
