"They're gorgeous. But they don't have the drive exhibited by New York girls. Like Helen of Troy, their faces and figures are their fortune. They are photogenic, and they know all about cameras and microphones. In a way they are far more sophisticated than their eastern sisters.

"There's only one answer, and it's simple," he concluded. "Put brains, ambition and loveliness in one person and you have a star. The three adds up to personality, and that's the commodity-sometimes erroneously referred to as sex appeal—which keeps show business in busines
