Still Our Backbone

PRINCE RUPERT'S MEN OF THE SEA, her good fishermen, will soon be heading westward and northward again and with them will go our good wishes. Other industries and businesses may develop and sometimes we may take our fisheries as a matter of course as we do things with which we have been associated for a long time and which have become a part of our normal existence.

Prince Rupert has grown and expanded these last ten years or so and, perhaps, we do not realize that our fishing industry has done likewise, having developed in ratio to the increase in our population and our economic growth. All we need to do is to look at our waterfront today and compare its appearance with what it was a decade ago.

Look at our new fish processing buildings, our marine service establishments, our fuel stations, our floats today and picture them against those of a few years ago! All have their basic foundation on the fisheries which, indeed, have kept pace and are still our economic mainstay.

A SMILE

A smile costs nothing but gives much. It takes but a moment, but the memory of it may last forever. None are so rich that can get along without it—and none are so poor but that can be made rich by it. It enriches those who receive, without making poor those who give. It creates sunshine in the home, fosters good will in business, and is the best antidote for trouble. Yet it cannot be begged, borrowed or stolen, for it is of no value unless it is freely given away.

Some people are too busy to give you a smile—Give them one of yours—For the good Lord knows that no one needs a smile so badly as he or she who has no more smiles left to give.

SATURDAY SERMON

THE CHRISTIAN'S PRIZE

(By Rev. Earl Solland, St. Paul's Lutheran Church)

The Apostle Paul calls our attention to the fact that there is a prize offered to every Christian who successfully lives a Godly life here on earth. In the ninth chapter of First Corinthians he compares this Christian experience to that of a man who is running a race. The athlete makes himself fit for the trying ordeal and does away with any form of self-indulgence which would make him physically unfit. Then he tells us that we should use the same logic regarding spiritual fitness.

Physical fitness, together with proper effort, is required to win. At one of the contests between the track men of the college which I attended and another school one of our athletes was well in the lead as he was running the home stretch. Then he looked around to see where the other runners were. In that other moment he lost his stride and came in second at the finish. He was so concerned to know what the others were doing that he was not able to do his best. So also we find that if we are to compete successfully for the prize God offers, we must learn to do our utmost without regarding what others are doing.

The prize for the Christian is pictured by Christ in the twentieth chapter of Matthew. It is called Heaven, God's gift for man. Elsewhere in the Bible we find brief descriptions of this wonderful place. It should be a matter of interest to learn about this prize. And, as we learn to know its value, we should be certain that we do not lose it. The prize is so precious that it is worth striving for. The price of that award is the price of personal self-denial which is required to live a Godly life.

Perhaps we can ask ourselves some profitable questions. Since we want the prize of Heaven, can we afford to do anything which would rob us of such a prize? A man does not need much religion if he does not intend to spend eternity with God in Heaven. If, however, he wants to spend eternity with God in Heaven, he needs Jesus Christ to be his ever present companion in life. The presence of Christ will enable him to do that which is required to live a Godly life. Certainly it means a different kind of life from that which would otherwise be lived. It means the denial of many of those things which seem to please so much, but which later rob us of true joy. Is there anything which gives temporary pleasure that is worth having in place of the prize of eternal life? No there is not.

Who can have this prize? God says that it is available to all who want it. If you want it badly enough you can have it. You should remember that you can't live an ungodly life and also enjoy God's blessings now and in eternity. Run the race well. Keep your body in subjection. Look towards the goal which is your calling in Christ Jesus. Then you shall win.

Ray Reflects . . . and Reminisces

Organization of 'teen age clubs by the mounties is reported to be working as slick as pie. Teen age troubles are disappearing. To start with, any young fellow respects that jacket with all its imples. Then, he has a friend in the other young fellow—tallish, active, shapely and capable of knowing and doing so many different things, and popular without half trying. Yeah! A good guy to have on your side.

Whoever, in Prince Rupert, thought of allowing Port Day to fade away and gradually die is going to suffer a grievous disappointment. A port like this ought to be celebrated anyway, on general principles, for there are few better. Enough is going on here, with more activities on the way, to take as a matter of course, the eager looking forward to the annual summer blowout. Naturally, Port Day and Sport Day go together.

It's wet enough for the most exacting Manitoban to "remember the Red River valley" just now when floods are sweeping the pioneer prairie province for long distances. There come times when wheat fields look like wash-outs.

city. This was decided at a meeting of the council Thursday night. The Commission has granted a permit here for transportation of tourists along a certain designated route. Steamship companies, Secretary H. F. Glassey said, would offer the $1.20 tickets to tourists aboard vessels and transportation would await them at the dock.

The meeting began a few minutes late due to the late arrival of President Ed Mussellam. But Mr. Mussellam was hastily forgiven. He had been attending a meeting of the Junior Chamber of Commerce Port Day committee and announced that Port Day has a chance of survival.

It was announced that two or three sites in the city are available as tourist camp areas. The council is taking the matter up with persons concerned with a view of having an auto camp established in the very near future. Prince Rupert is the only major point on Highway 16 that does not boast an auto camp.

Secretary Glassey and John Sims were appointed to draft information about Prince Rupert to be forwarded to Kate Alken in Eastern Canada. She recently contacted the Jaycees here for information about the city that could be used on her Dominion-wide broadcasts. The letter was turned over to the Public Relations Council.

A finance committee was appointed with N. R. Young as chairman.

Comes advice from Toronto of an increase of four cents in the wholesale price of tea which, in Toronto, would bring it to $1.19 retail. But then, gossiping gracefully, is not always a discouraged art.

Front pages down east scream with scareheads telling about the tear-gas, rifle shooting story in the Quesnel mountain country, between police and a young couple who felt so friendly to each other. Northern B.C. could do with a different type of publicity—and far better scenery.

The twenty-fourth of May, this year, falls on a Wednesday and July 1, Dominion Day, on a Saturday. It has already been suggested that Ottawa amend public holidays legislation, whereby observance of the twenty-fourth and the first will always be on a Monday. Already, Labor Day and Thanksgiving have it that way. There is no good reason why the change could not become effective. Where's the harm in enjoying more extended leave from noon Saturday to Tuesday. You have your outing, change, rest and resume the job, feeling that after all, it's not such an unmitigated nuisance of a world.
