ALASKA MUST BE PROTECTED

SEWARD—General J. H. Atkinson, commander of the air force in Alaska, recently declared:

"The Army is not in Alaska to fan the fire of war hysteria but it must be understood that Alaska is a strategic outpost and the area must be guarded against a false sense of security."

"If an attack ever comes it will come first, through the air, and with no warning."

Gyro Convention Is Washed Out

District convention of the Gyro Club, which was to have been held at Harrison Hot Springs this month, has been postponed on account of the Fraser River flood situation, the local club has been advised. It may be held in September if conditions become more stabilized by that time.

MAKING RUPERT PORT OF ISLANDS

Case for the establishment, in the interests of economy and better service, of Prince Rupert as the port of departure from the mainland for the Queen Charlotte Islands, eliminating the long and unproductive haul to the Islands from Vancouver, has been prepared by the public utilities committee of the Prince Rupert Chamber of Commerce and forwarded by the secretary to the departments and officials concerned at Ottawa. It is suggested that subsidies for Queen Charlotte Islands in future, including those for carrying of mails, be altered accordingly.

AIDED SHIPS AT SEA
LONDON @—Britain's post office radio stations dealt with 282 distress calls during 1947. In addition, 323 medical messages were handled under a service called Medical Advice to Ships at Sea.

PRODUCED ATOM BOMB
The state of Tennessee, though far down the list in U.S. industry, won world prominence in 1945 for production of the atomic bomb.

City, District Development Shows Steady Growth

Trade with Alaska always has been a matter of vital interest to Prince Rupert, as it is the closest northern port to the great northern territory. Prospects for development of that trade this year seem rosier than ever before.

One of the main reasons for optimism is the fact that Presidential bodies at Washington has been supporting the abolition of restrictive clauses in the American Jones Act, legislation which ties Alaska to the coast tails of Seattle. If this move by President Truman is successful, it will mean much to the development of brisk trade between Prince Rupert and the territory.

Alaskan fish for many years has been shipped in bond through the port of Prince Rupert and this year it was supplemented with experimental shipments of lumber which were brought by barge from Juneau. The experimental shipment of 600,000 board feet which went east to the United States by rail was considered successful and shipments would have been continued had not labor trouble in the Alaska mill which sponsored it forced the mill to close down.

Plans also have been announced by the Southeastern Alaska Shipping Co. to begin a rail-car barge service from Prince Rupert to Ketchikan but the progress of these negotiations has not been revealed.

Prince Rupert's historic main industry, fishing, has fared well so far this season. Halibut landings at this port for the first five weeks of the season exceeded 7,000,000 pounds of which more than 1,000,000 was landed in bond by American boats.

The spring salmon catch this season is picking up and salmon men are looking forward to a good season for sockeye, coho and pinks on the Skeena and Naas Rivers. Six canneries along the Skeena mouth are preparing now for the opening of the sockeye season at the end of June and price negotiations are under way with the fishermen.

TIMBERING EXPANDING

Timbering in the district, which has developed steadily since the war with buoyant prices, will be in for an unprecedented expansion when the celanese pulp mill gets into production. The company has sustained yield production rights to an area of 17,000 square miles lying between the Skeena and Naas watersheds.

Even now, however, there is tremendous activity in the district around Terrace where small operators are bringing out logs and cedar poles in large quantities, and on the Queen

Charlotte Islands, where the Powell River Co. and Pacific Mills have vast tracks of Sitka spruce, hemlock and cedar on Moresby and Graham Islands.

Sawlog production in the Prince Rupert Forestry district last year was 258,000,000 board feet and for the first five months of 1948 it has been in excess of 80,000,000. No fewer than 150 logging operations and sawmills are reported to be active in the Prince Rupert Forestry district.

Much of the logging for the Columbia Cellulose Co. will centre at Terrace, 95 miles away, where, it is expected, the logs will be gathered from the far-flung stands and either brought to Port Edward by rail or rafted down the Skeena River.

An increase in mining activity in the district is making itself felt. At Alice Arm, less than 100 miles to the north, the Torbrit Mining Co. this year is spending more than $150,000 on production preparations for the Torbrit Silver mine. This includes construction of concentration mill, a mining village, roads and pit-head installations. A large part of the work is being done by a Prince Rupert contracting firm, employing city workers.

At Stewart, mining centre of the north, exploration and development work on many properties is continuing and the atmosphere there is more hopeful than it has been in years.

Prince Rupert is keeping its fingers crossed regarding a proposal of The Aluminum Co. of Canada to establish an aluminum plant, similar to Quebec's famed Arvida, at some west coast point where large supplies of hydro-electric power are available. Among the sites mentioned is one at the head of Gardner Canal, 100 miles south of Prince Rupert. The project has been announced as a $400,000,000 one and, if it were located within that radius of Prince Rupert, it would have untold effect on the future destiny of the city.

While this prospect is being pondered, there is a considerable amount of construction going on in Prince Rupert, with more planned. Construction this year so far has had a value of more than $81,000, much of it for new buildings, while the balance was for renewal and repair of business buildings and homes.

The city's business district is taking on a bright appearance as store operators and owners join in renewing some of the older buildings. New places of business are gradually being added to the downtown community.

The first wing of the new junior-senior high school may be begun this year.

One of the outstanding construction operations scheduled for this year is the building of a new powerhouse and laundry at the Miller Bay Indian hospital, six miles from the city. This is to be a $100,000 job, done by a city contracting firm.

Business activity also is reflected in customs and excise revenues at the regional Customs office. For the first five months of 1948 they have aggregated $203,000, almost double the figure for the same period in 1947.

The employment situation in the district is reasonably cheerful. At the present time, there is a slight slump due to a lull in the fishing season but this is expected to be temporary. Unusual flood conditions which damaged transportation facilities also has had an effect on normal employment. This, however, is expected to be of short duration. Meantime extra men are being engaged for line restoration work.

Prince Rupert is grooming itself for what may be a banner tourist year, despite flood conditions that damaged highways and railways in the south. Coastwise steamship companies have bookings which will fill all their special cruise boats for the three summer months.

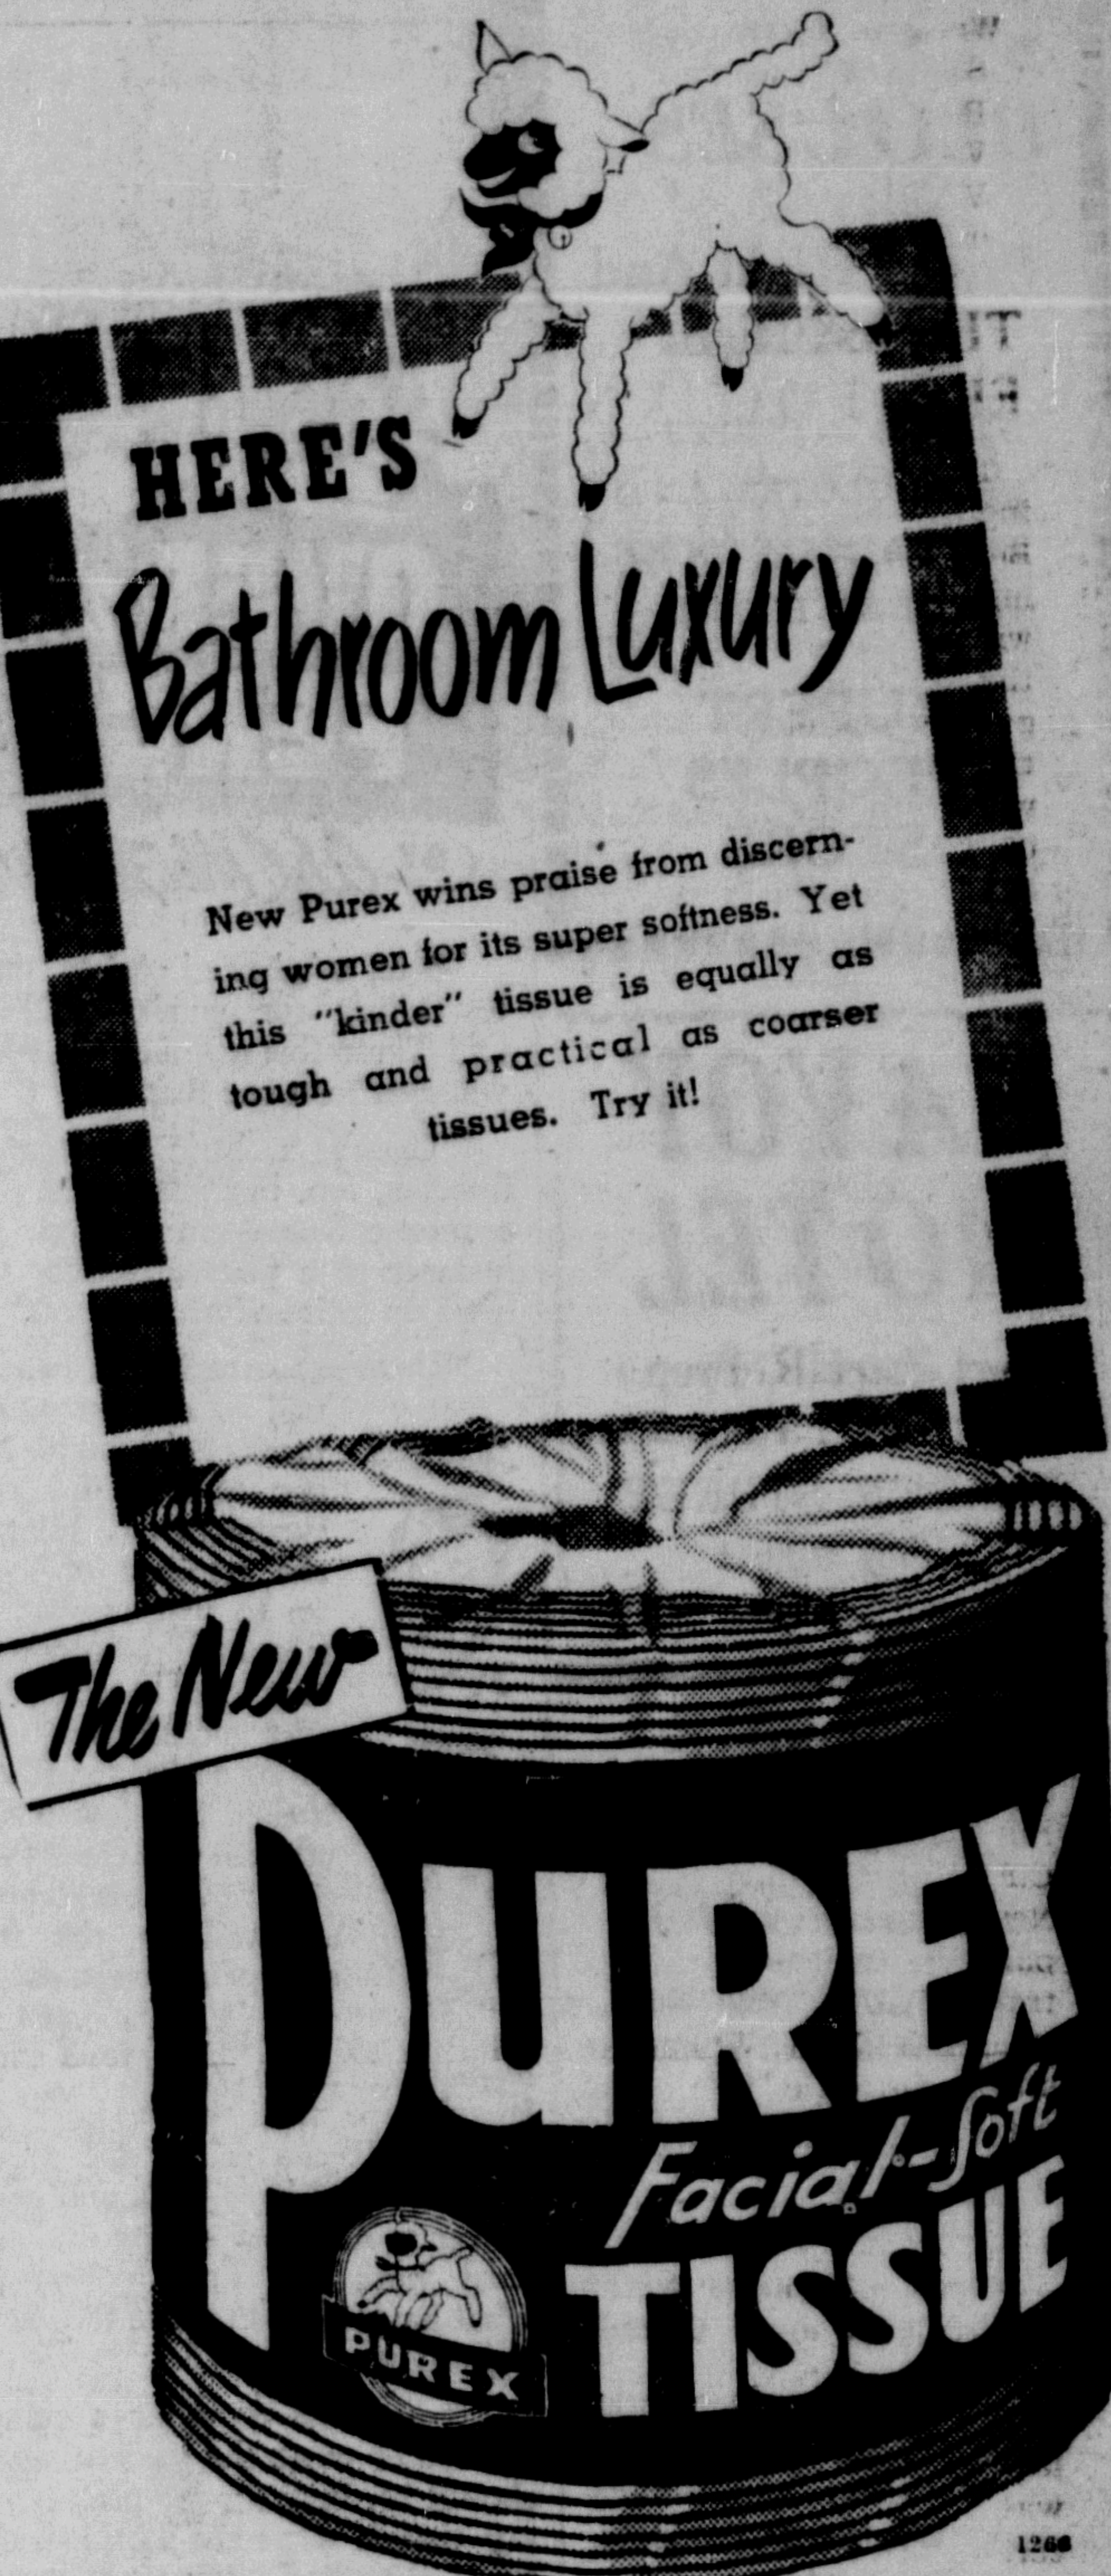

In the Alaska cruise service this summer will be five vessels, all of which make regular stops at Prince Rupert. Most outstanding of this fleet will be the new Canadian National vessel Prince George, which will make her first call here June 12. There will also be the Union Steamship's Chilcotin, Canadian National's Prince Rupert, and the Princess Louise and Princess Norah of Canadian Pacific coast steamships.

In addition to that, there will be four other vessels making regular runs from Vancouver to Prince Rupert. The Princess Adelaide, Cardena and Catala on a weekly basis, and the Coquitlam travelling the Queen Charlotte Islands every 10 days.

IMMIGRANTS ARRIVING

Tourists, however, have not been the only arrivals in Prince Rupert, nor are they expected to be. In the last several months, there have been numbers of European immigrants arriving in the district. Most of these have been from The Netherlands and are destined to make homes in the central interior, mainly around Houston and Terrace. These have practically all been the self-sustaining type of new citizen whose prospects for home making were brightened either by their own funds or help from friends already established in the district.
