WHERE TOYS ARE MADE—Dubbed by the British press "nine women in a hurry," this group of Canadian newspaper women are touring England as guests of the Dollar-Sterling Board. Their tour includes visits to many industries and press conferences with leading British economic officials. Here the group visit the Lines Company toy factory, largest in the world. Left to right are: Pearl L'Ami of The Winnipeg Free Press; Pat Wallace of The Vancouver Province; Kay Rex of The Canadian Press, Ottawa; Joan Marshall of CBC, Moncton; Mrs. Byrne Hope Sanders, editor of Chatelaine Magazine and leader of the group; Mrs. Reta Myers of Vancouver, president of the Canadian Women's Press Club; Margaret Aitken of the Toronto Telegram and Armande Mare of Montreal La Patrie. Demonstrating the toy dog is Graham Lines. (CP PHOTO)

Railway Is 100 Years Old

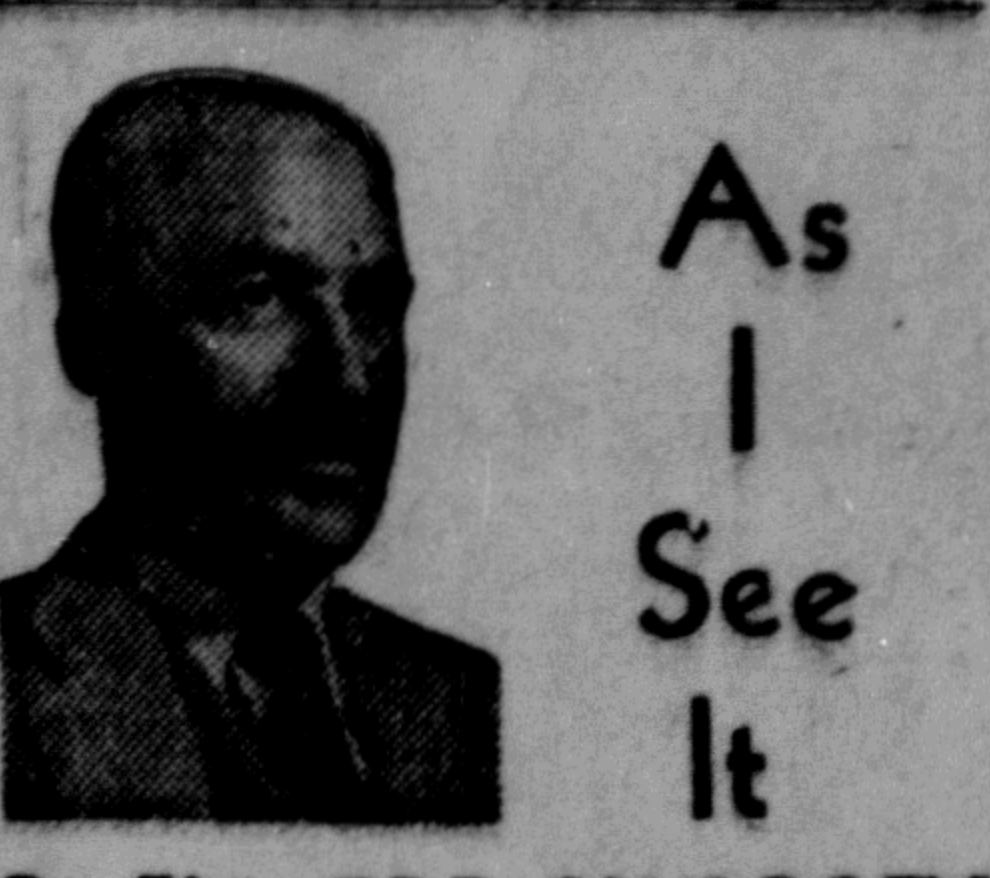

ST ALBAN'S, Vermont—In commemorating the event, we are not merely paying tribute to an individual railway which has served this state well but we are also remembering the faith and the courage of John Smith and Lawrence Brainard and others like them who saw a vision and lived to make it come true," said Donald Gordon, president of the Canadian National Railways, who was guest speaker at the civic luncheon here in connection with the 100th anniversary of the Central Vermont Railway.
Led by these two men, Vermont wanted a Great Lakes to Boston route, a route from New York and New England to Canada and the development of a trans-continental railway. They got the first two themselves, and the third came to pass when the Central Vermont became part of the western world's largest railroad system—the Canadian National.
"Even though railways are now a commonplace we should not

Guelpas Making Visit To Italy

After living in this province for 38 years, 14 years in Prince Rupert and the ensuing years in Victoria, Mr. and Mrs. Guelpa are returning to their European homeland to visit relatives.
Enroute they will stop at Vancouver, White Rock and New York where they will board the ss. Saturnia, to visit friends and relatives.
During the Christmas season this year, brothers, sisters and relatives of the couple will, for the first time in 45 years, be reunited in the family home near the northern Italian city of Turin.
Mr. and Mrs. Guelpa were honored recently when 200 friends gathered at Prince Rupert House for a "bon voyage" party. During the evening a toast was made to the honor guests by Prof. Giuseppe Caraci of Rome, who was in the city following a tour of Canada and the United States. A steamer trunk and club bag were presented to them from the assembled guests.
Among those who have entertained in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Guelpa in the last few weeks are Mr. and Mrs. A. DeGiralamo, Mr. and Mrs. G. Parent, Mr. and Mrs. O. Guelpa, Jr., Mesdames M. Perdue, A. Charleton, and member of the Victoria Chapter No. 25 Women of the Moose, of which Mr. and Mrs. M. Dilorio.
Mr. and Mrs. Guelpa are expected to return to their Fernwood home in two years.
The fire department was called to the old Canadian Legion building this morning at 11 o'clock when smoke from the furnace caused a scare. The furnace, which had not been lit for a long time, was used to burn some paper and filled the building with smoke.

By ELMORE PHILPOTT CASE OF DR. CANUCK

CONSIDER the strange case of the young doctor who for five years successfully practiced medicine without a licence. His name doesn't matter. But as he lived in Canada before he joined the Army Medical Corps let's call him Doctor Canuck.
They sent Dr. Canuck to jail for a year not long ago. They found out that he had no medical school diploma—in fact had never been graduated even by a high school. But somewhere or other Dr. Canuck had acquired the "knowhow" to do the ordinary things that doctors do. He had delivered hundreds of babies. He had performed difficult operations. Some of his successes read like a book. The nurses, who get the best chance to assess a doctor's true efficiency, said he was top-notch.
"He was a very good doctor and a nice person," says Miss Miriam Watnick, superintendent of the Brooklynn Women's Hospital.
FAR BE IT from me to excuse Dr. Canuck's deception—especially when he married a doctor's daughter. But this piece is about an old text, as stated by one of Dickens' famous characters:
"The law is a 'hass.'"
The law is certainly an ass when the law sends a good doctor to jail. There are many parts of the U.S.A.—not to mention Canada—where the people can't get a doctor for love nor money. If the unlicensed doctor had to be punished why not sentence him to serve in one of those communities on the northern frontiers of Canadian settlement where they had petitioned for months, without success, for the services of a doctor?
WHY DO WE pass laws insisting that doctors get diplomas? Surely because the diploma is a PARTIAL assurance that the person in question will make a fit healer. Yet everybody knows of a few doctors who hold diplomas who are far from competent.

The compulsion to get a diploma may keep many duds out of the medical profession. But half a dozen diplomas cannot make a good doctor of a dud. If a "natural" turns up without a diploma, why not get him one?
I would like to see some commonsense university make it possible for Dr. Canuck to get his diploma in less time than do those who start from scratch. After all, you have to admit that he learned his doctoring the hard way—but watching and doing rather than by reading.

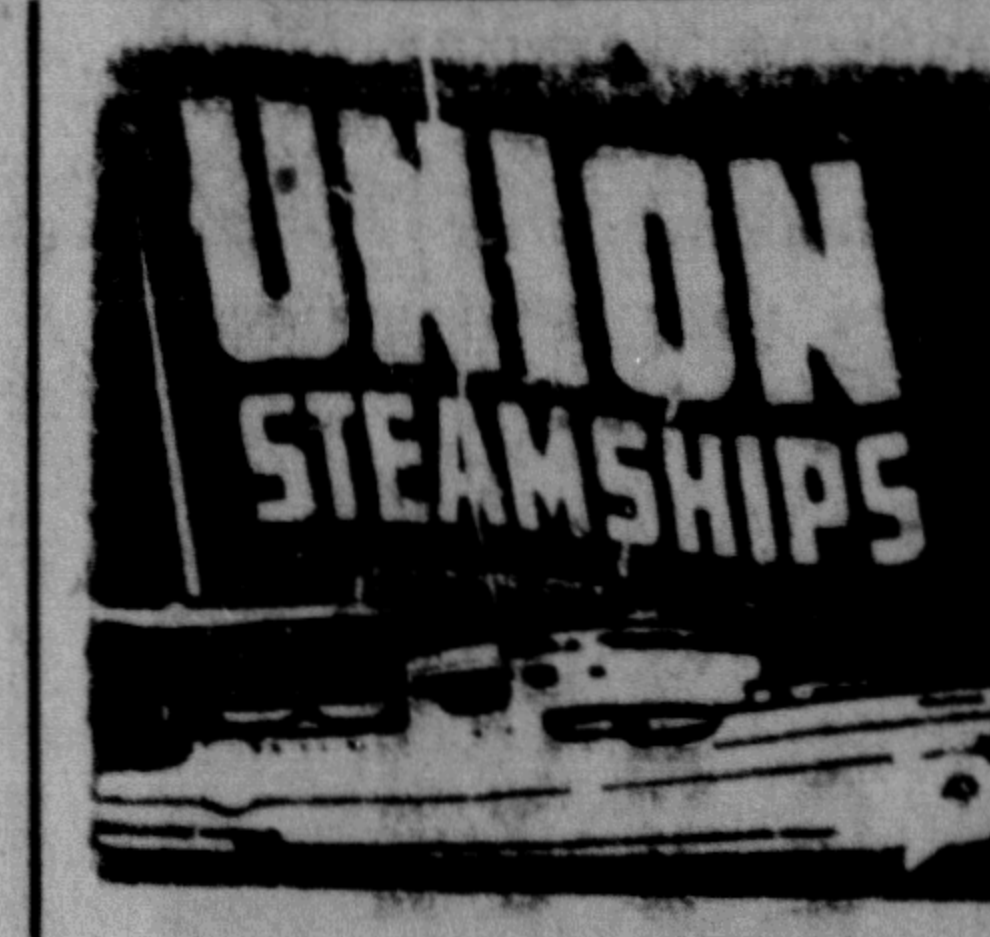

REMINDS ME of a tale I heard in the Far North. In the early days of a famous gold camp city a dentist used to fly in each year via Edmonton. He hired and trained an Eskimo assistant.
At the end of the third summer sojourn, the Eskimo asked him what he would take to sell out his equipment.
"It took me years at college to learn this profession," said the astounded dentist.
"Maybe you slow," replied the Eskimo, who incidentally borrowed $4000 cash from the Hudson's Bay Company, bought the outfit, and, according to northern legend, practiced with satisfaction to all concerned.
