We Are Congratulated

APPRECIATIONS are being received at the Daily News office following recent publication of the international joint edition by this newspaper in co-operation with the Ketchikan Chronicle.

Former Premier T. D. Pattullo has written congratulating the Daily News on "the initiative and enterprise you have displayed and to express appreciation of the public service you are rendering both locally and internationally."

Frank Turner, chief of bureau, Canadian Press, Vancouver, writes: "Congratulations on that smart international edition. It's a honey of a job."

Incidentally, Canadian Press put out the following feature story from Toronto Bureau for distribution to all newspapers in Canada:

The story of the growing economic importance of northern British Columbia and its friendly neighbor, Alaska, is told in a recent international edition published by two newspapers, the Prince Rupert Daily News and the Ketchikan, Alaska Chronicle.

The single issue, published Nov. 17, was the co-operative work of the two newspapers. The Daily News printed a 24-page, two section, edition and with it went a 16-page Alaska Chronicle edition.

The international edition was sponsored by the Prince Rupert Trades and Labor Council (A.F.L.-T.L.C.).

The port of Prince Rupert, says a story in the Daily News part of the issue, is linked in common destiny with Alaska's shipping and industrial interests.

Prince Rupert, 500 miles north of Vancouver, is only 40 miles from the southerly tip of the Alaskan Panhandle and 96 miles from Ketchikan, Alaska's first port and called the salmon packing capital of the world.

Prince Rupert is 500 miles closer to southeastern Alaska than is Seattle, the original port for Alaska trade. With the advent of statehood for Alaska, certain shipping restrictions are expected to be removed.

Industrial expansion in Alaska, with the building of pulp mills and other projects, will provide increased tonnage for the port of Prince Rupert, the most northerly terminus on the Pacific coast of a trans-continental railroad—the Canadian National Railways.

Prince Rupert is the halibut capital of the world, with millions of pounds of the valuable fish landed here each year from Canadian and United States vessels for rail shipment to eastern markets.

Millions of dollars are being spent in the construction of a cellulose plant which already gives employment to 1000 workers. It will require large-scale logging operations to feed the mill, which is designed to produce purified cellulose for textiles and plastics.

Construction of a new home for the Daily News is to be started shortly. It will be of modern construction, featuring the latest in newspaper office planning.

The Daily News was founded 40 years ago. Its first publisher was G. R. T. Sawle, now of St. Catharines, Ont. Since 1943 it has been under the control of H. G. T. Perry, president and managing director. The managing editor is G. A. Hunter.

WORLD SHIPBUILDING

ATEST Admiralty statistics reveal some interesting information about the world shipbuilding situation. They show that the tonnage of merchant shipping under construction in United Kingdom yards in September rose to 1,950,000, about 36 per cent being for export. New tonnage at 122,000 exceeded work completed by 25,000, more than half the total being taken by tankers. Tanker tonnage under construction in the United Kingdom now stands at the record level of 807,000 of which more than 50 per cent is scheduled for overseas owners. The volume of shipping undergoing repair or reconversion is maintaining anticipated decline and now stands at just 2.4 million tons compared with 2.9 millions in January and the 3.5 millions peak figure reached in March 1948.

Total merchant tonnage under construction in the world at the end of September was 1,067 steamships and motorships (excluding ships of under 100 tons gross) of approximately 4.6 million tons gross. Of these, 392 ships of approximately two million tons were being built in the United Kingdom so that 45 per cent of the total tonnage under construction throughout the world is being built in United Kingdom yards.

TB CHRISTMAS

LIKE three thousand other Prince Rupert people we have received an envelope from the Soroptimist Club of Prince Rupert containing two dollars worth of "Prevent Tuberculosis" Christmas Seals. The sale of these seals is one of the principal means by which the Canadian Tuberculosis Association carries on its work throughout Canada of fighting tuberculosis. The important thing, and we urge everybody to do so promptly, is to mail the remittances promptly so that Prince Rupert may have a good record of support for a good work the benefits of which are felt here.

At this season of the year when so many things demand, we should not neglect attention to this simple but very important act which is a matter of concern to us all.

Services in the Church

SATURDAY SERMON

(By Rev. Earl Solland, St. Paul's Lutheran Church)
WORDS OF GRACE

"And all bare Him witness, and wondered at the gracious words which proceeded out of His mouth. And they said, 'Is not this Joseph's son?'" — Luke 4:22

Jesus Christ has spoken to man about the most important things in life. As we enter into the new church year we can gain much good for ourselves if we take time to let Christ speak to us. The words of Jesus are more than those of other men for they contain much that reaches the depths of the human soul. The Bible tells us that they are full of power, they are spiritual, they give life, they are without peer, they bring judgment, they are divine, and they carry a promise of fulfillment.

Christ's words have many interesting qualities. Among them are these: they are imperishable, they are words of grace.

Many of the people who heard Jesus speak are just like a lot of us today. Jesus speaks and they became interested. Surely He had a message. The message touched a vital place in their life. It convicted them of unrighteousness. They knew He was right. How about it, did they change from the wrong path in life? No, this was only Joseph the carpenter's son. We have known him since He was a child. Why should He interfere in our lives? And so, the words of grace are heard and no apparent effect is produced because of the hardness of men's hearts.

It is common today to get somewhat the same reply to the words of grace that God speaks. Surely we know that God's Word is truth. We know that we should give it a place in our hearts. We know that we should obey it. But then, it is so nice to sleep on Sunday. It is the only day we can really relax and loaf and do the things we like to do. And if we do go to church we are only reminded that we are wrong and we already know that.

When Jesus speaks, His words are words of grace. That means that they contain a gift for us. This gift is according to our needs and differs according to each person. The gift may be in the form of a warning that our present path leads to hell. It may be words of encouragement to travel the rugged path that leads to heaven. It may be that it brings the great news that our sins, though they be great are forgiven. Perhaps we are spiritually dead. Then the words of Christ may give to us a new spiritual life. Our needs are many. God is able to meet every need.

The Bible tells us that the only way we can get these gifts is to be where God's Word is found. When God speaks to you in the church service and you are willing to obey these words, then you receive God's gift. If you stop to consider that the only way that you can get to heaven is to receive the heavenly information and food that is found in God's Word, then you will not be slack in using the opportunity that God gives to you. Wisdom demands that you listen to the words that Christ speaks and then give them a place of authority in your life.

Miss Faure Is Honored

By Art Club on Her 80th Birthday

The Prince Rupert Art Club met this week, first to study the Art exhibit sent from the Vancouver Art Gallery, then to honor Jeanne Faure, the honorary President and founder on her eightieth birthday.

First the records accompanying the exhibit were played, without much enlightenment, then the group went around trying to find all the good they could in each picture, Miss Faure making a commentary.

It was thought that the feeling of moonlight and the deep blue of the sky in "Moonlight near Ashcroft" was very good but the shadows not deep enough. In "Low Tide," the favorite, the houses and mountains should have been less distinct than the effective boat in the foreground. The boy watching in "Pruners" and the figures in "Mother and Child" were very good, also the figures in the market scene and the expression on the faces in "Main Street," although neither of the last two would be pleasant pictures to own. No one, not even the recorded commentator, could find good in "Yellow Hat," and "Landscape" was a puzzle to all.

Miss Faure said "None of the pictures give proof of the artists having studied objects as they really are. For example in 'Rocks Sea and Wood,' the sea is well done but the driftwood would have to have magnetic strength to hold onto the rocks instead of sliding down. This makes it very hard for the public to understand the picture. If the artist thinks it unnecessary or unimportant for the people to understand what he has to say, or if he just has nothing to say, let him keep his picture at home. 'All I can say of the picture of the colored rectangles is that the artist must have made a study of his grandmother's kitchen linoleum.'

The group then went to the ladies' lounge where dead silence reigned for an hour while all sketched a dog that kept changing his position constantly. When the resulting drawings were displayed, it turned out that many had sketched Mary Sinclair who was trying to hold the dog still, while Mrs. Hill had an excellent sketch of Edith Johnston bending over her work, and Mr. Cheesman had drawn Miss Lavigne and Mrs. Priest in deep concentration.

Tea was served, and when Mrs. Rogerson placed before Miss Faure a lighted birthday cake, the guest of honor remarked that she felt she was growing younger, not older. This was followed by the presentation of a handsome gift and a bouquet of flowers, with the good wishes of those present and several absent that she have many more birthdays in which to lead them in their efforts to produce something beautiful.

Passengers arriving yesterday on the Camosun were D. G. McDonald, M. Berg, Alber Dixon, Harold Dixon, Miss V. Morris.

Money and Trouble Can Be Saved

The next time you hear of a fire say to yourself, "I must get my heating system checked by THOM SHEET METAL to make sure that it is in shape for winter weather."

And the next time you hear of a fire say to yourself, I meant to phone THOM SHEET METAL but I'll do it now.
