

Australian Gov't Tightens Radio Laws as Election Nears

By ANTONY WHITLOCK
(Canadian Press Correspondent)

SYDNEY, Australia—The Labor government, facing a general election in three months, has toughened its ban on some types of political discussion by radio.

Through its broadcasting control board it has ruled out any political broadcast which contains acted conversations or attempts to create "dramatic situations" for political purposes.

This action follows a recent ban by the New South Wales State government of any press comment whatever for 72 hours before a State election.

Most of Australia's 140 radio stations are owned by private firms. Surveys indicate that at least 90 percent of Australia's 1,500,000 radio sets, are tuned to the commercial stations in preference to the government's stations.

For several years the Opposition Liberal party has been providing dramatic political broadcasts over the commercial outlets. These programs in which a character named John Henry Austral figured prominently, stirred considerable public interest.

The presentation of incidents and debates unfavorable to the Labor party caused more than a little heartburning in government circles. Last year the administration came up with a broadcasting bill giving a new control board strong control powers over all stations.

The act forbade any broadcast dramatization of political happenings within five years of the event; but the John Henry Austral broadcasts went on with token amendments, and only a few faint-hearted commercial stations refused to accept them. Then, because of the coal strike in July and August, the Liberal party was unable to get new recordings made and tried to re-play some old ones. Most of the stations, dependent on the government's goodwill for their existence, jibbed.

Now the control board has forbidden political broadcasts which contain "any attempts to give the impression or produce the effect of reality or actuality in any address or discussion by the use of sound effects. Any attempts to use dialogue between any persons or characters, named or anonymous, real or fictitious, where these persons are represented by actors or other persons who read or act parts. Any simulated voices."

- A A thirteenth of the earth's crust is aluminum. It is found in mountains and gems, in vegetables and clay, in meat and water — practically everywhere.
- L Long ago the Romans knew it as a salt. They called it "alumen" and used it as a medicine or for dyeing cloth.
- U Until the middle 1800's, the metal aluminum was rarer and more costly than gold. Napoleon III had his own personal tableware made of it.
- M Modern science found a way to make it cheap. That is why, today, everybody can buy useful and lasting articles made of aluminum.
- I In Canada we have none of the high-grade aluminum ore called "bauxite". Canadians bring it in by shipload from British Guiana — a voyage of 3000 miles.
- N Northeastern Canada has the world's largest aluminum smelter. Alcan built it there, at Arvida. This site was chosen because it is close to both a port for ocean ships bringing bauxite and an abundant source of hydro-electric power.
- U Until Alcan harnessed this water power, it ran to waste. Smelting aluminum needs vast supplies of power. The electricity required to produce one ton of aluminum would light your house for fifteen.
- M More than 15,000 people operate this Canadian industry. They earn more than thirty-five million dollars a year. These earnings flow across Canada.

Alcan (Aluminum Company of Canada, Ltd.)

Alcan (Aluminum Company of Canada, Ltd.) makes aluminum ingots. More than 1000 independent manufacturers across Canada shape aluminum into light, strong, non-rusting articles for your use. The variety grows daily.

In addition to supplying these firms, Alcan sells about 85% of its ingots to other countries. This aluminum is now Canada's sixth largest export, a source of much needed money from abroad.

Because Alcan does market so much abroad, it is able to make aluminum in such large quantities that, in ingot form, it can be purchased more cheaply in Canada than anywhere else in the world.
