VERONICA CUTS BLONDE FORELOCK

Movie Star 'Breaks In' Director Hubbie's Pipes

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Well, it's happened. Veronica Lake has cut off her famous forelock. And Hollywood has lost another trademark.

The shorn Miss Lake is very happy about it all. "You've no idea what a nuisance all that hair was," she confided, modestly displaying her new coiffure to curls close to the head.

Her blonde locks extended two or three inches below the shoulder when she ordered them cropped after finishing her latest picture, "Isn't It Romantic." The peek-a-boo bang over the eye will be back eventually, because it's in her contract.

At the moment Miss Lake isn't worrying about a picture. She's expecting a baby in September, her third, and until she returns to the screen her hair is hers to do with as she wishes.

Miss Lake got some double-takes when she took her new hair-do to the Beverly Hills Club for the first time. And that amused her; she looks much more like a demure little housewife than a glamor girl.

Miss Lake, very much a homebody these days, chattered about her kids, Elaine, 6, and Michael, 2½. She also imparted this informative bit:

Her husband, Director Andre de Toth, an inveterate pipe smoker, hates new pipes. So Veronica breaks them in for him. "I enjoy it," she declared. "They're not bad, even new, if you smear honey in the bowl first. I've found a little lemon helps, too."

LIPSTICK OFFENSIVE
WHANGAREI, N.Z. (C)—Arch-deacon A. E. Prebble of Whangarei, has warned his women parishioners that he objects to them wearing lipstick when they come to Holy Communion. Leaving lipstick on the chalice was "not only undesirable, but also rude."

WINNIPEG GIRL WINS HONORS AS VOCALIST

Second Prize Winner In Carnegie Hall Competition Overcame Extreme Nervousness of Childhood

By MARILYN LAMBORN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (C)—The 14-year-old girl who was so self-conscious she sang to her first audience while hidden behind a piano, is now 21 and the only Canadian winner in the Carnegie Hall scholarship.

She is Winnipeg-born Esther Gahn, second-prize winner in the competition, open to music and voice students in the United States and Canada.

"Until about four years ago I was so nervous I couldn't get out a note even in front of teachers," said the coloratura soprano. "Now the bigger the audience, the more I like it and the better I sing."

Something even Miss Gahn can't understand is the fact that she could play the piano before any audience without a quiver, but when she opened her mouth to sing before members of her own family she couldn't utter a sound.

In her home town of Winnipeg she studied piano for 10 years with the object of being a concert pianist. Later, however, her uncle, Sherman Gahn, Toronto pianist, persuaded her to come here and take singing lessons.

It was her uncle who forcibly put an end to her nervousness. He made engagements for her, which she was bound to accept. At first this method was "awful," but she later found herself singing right to the audience.

HELD JOINT RECITAL

A year ago, the dark-haired, blue-eyed singer held a joint recital with her uncle in Toronto. Mr. Gahn was especially proud of his niece that night because it was he who recognized her talent. When she was two years old he gave her a Russian melody, and heard her sing it "note-perfect." Ever since he has given her encouragement and advice.

For the next few years, Miss Gahn hopes to gain professional status as a radio and concert singer. Later comes opera, and perhaps fulfillment of a dream to make her debut in Lucia di Lammermoor in the Metropolitan.

Her advice to other young singers is "don't be like me." She feels it's necessary to go out after what you want to get any place, but so far she hasn't had enough "nerve" to phone producers, or "bother people about auditions."

She also believes no musician can succeed without constant study. Working under a personal scholarship from Miss Nina de Gedeonoff, she spends about six hours daily on her music. She also finds time to help her father in his grocery store.
