BURNS DOMINATE MEN'S FIVE PINS

News of the death of Brown Jack, equine idol of racegoers during the early '30's and bestloved stayer in British racing history, recalls mnay stories of his career. For instance, he is the only horse to have had sermon preached about him, to have a 219-page biography, a partiality fro Cheddar cheese, hot beer, and whisky.

His name was coupled for years with that of the late Steve Donoghue who rode him in his unprecedented triumph in the Queen Alexandra Stakes at more htan 23/4 miles the long. est flat race in England under 201 Jockey Club rules. He won i 190 six times in succession from 1929 to 1934. His successes with 182 Steve—they became known 180 the "old firm"—were legend. So 178 was his companionship with 177 Mail Fist, a horse that often acted as his pacemaker and as often, faded gracefully out of the picture.

Brown Jack always preferred 217 to travel facing the engine, 215 loved the noise and bustle 210 the racecourse, and after 198 while cultivated an odd kind of 197 dance, a two-step shuffle, as T. He seemed to find the cold metal soothing.

> After eight years' racing he was retired. He had won 25 of his 63 races and earned more than £24,000 ($96,000) for owner Sir Harold Wernher. Such was his fame that in 1944, 10 years after his last race, admirers were still sending him lumps of sugar saved from their rations! for Christmas presents. And when he came of age in 1945, he got a telegram from Steve Donoghue saying: "Best of luck in 1945 from your old pal Steve." Brown Jack then was at grass on a farm near Marset Harborough, Leicestershire his home for 14 years. Under Food Ministry regulations he was not earning his keep and was not entitled to a ration of

The British Museum is to exhibit his skeleton and his brain will weighed 19 pounds - nine pounds more than average. Among races Brown Jack won were the Ascot Stakes (1928), Goodwood Cup and Doncaster Cup (1930), Chester Cup and Ebor Handicap (1931), Prince Edward Handicap, Manchester (1932), Rosebery Memorial Handicap (1933) - and, of course, his phenomenal Alexandra Stakes record.
