Averting Winter Crises

E CAN look forward to the next winter without having to worry about an electrical shortage such as threatened two years ago and really afflicted us last winter. In announcing the purchase by his company of the dry dock power plant wherein will be installed diesel generating units which will augment the power supply substantially, Mr. Black yesterday gave assurance that his company will be in a position to take care of all local requirements apart altogether from the hydro sources. That is an encouraging picture and, as Mr. Black suggests, will enable his company to deliberate on the possibilities of further power development to meet the needs which it seems certain will develop in the course of the next few years.

Now that we do not have to worry about the possibility of another power shortage, it is to be hoped that steps which are being taken by the city will avert the recurrence of another water crisis like those which have plagued us of recent years and left the city very vulnerable from a fire risk standpoint.

AIR SERVICE TO ALASKA

\\// E have been notified of a coming hearing in the petition of Ellis Air Lines for the right to serve Prince Rupert on a weekly scheduled basis.

The case of needed service to Prince Rupert is fairly simple and since Canadian air operators don't yet seem interested in coming to Alaska, it is a case of Alaskan operators going to Rupert. With the development of highway and air travel to Rupert since the war, along with its historic water and rail travel infux, there is a large number of tourists, both American and Canadian, arriving at Rupert with the desire to come on over and see Alaska.

This desire is unfulfilled. We were in Rupert I early in May at a time when traffic normally is light, but all hotels were filled to the brim, even at that early date, and many of their customers were tourists. The situation will be the same all summer long.

Arrival of statehood will end the onerous part of the Jones act and increase commercial ties with Rupert. The day thus may come soon when Canadians and Americans will be able to buy a ticket at Vancouver or Victoria for Ketchikan, Juneau or Fairbanks, Alaska, using the local leg from Rupert to Ketchikan to bring them into Alaska.

If, despite the courageous lead of the U.S.A., the North Korean armies win out, the hard-boiled men in the Kremlin may attempt to repeat the process—say by a thrust from Bulgaria into Greece, or from China into Burma.

But if, on the other hand, the loyal members of the UN are able to rally in time behind the U.S.A. to frustrate the aggressors, then the Soviet dictatorship may see the light.

THE MEN in the Kremlin have thus compelled a reluctant world to take up arms against the direct challenge of Communist aggression. It is not too late, even yet, to halt the drift toward World War III But nothing could so contribute to such a tragedy as a vacillating or weak stand by the morethan-50 nations which are loyal members of the UN.

The government of Russia must be taught—and all the satellites of that government must be taught—that the UN Charter means exactly what it says—that an attack on one member is an attack on all; and that all loyal members will come to the defence of the one

AND REMINISCES *******

Whitehorse was a drowsy, 3h- BACK! ent sort of place back in the thirties. Or so we thought, stepping off the train and looking around. A sign, several blocks away, said "Printing." It was correct to assume that meant the weekly newspaper "Star." We called, even before signing at a hotel. No one was home. There might have been a key. It was all so typical. The door of a second room was open. Plainly, the boss was away. Taking a chair we waited. A large, comfortable looking cat entered and sitting down looked us over.

Yes. Mr. Editor was away. Moore had left that morning for Vancouver by air. He was in Prince Rupert last week, having sold the Star to advantage and was going to dwell in the south and do a bit of newspaper work when he felt like it. In his case sticking to Whitehorse and the Star guided him eventually to Easy Street so it was all right at that. And there's one sure thing, for it always happens. He'll be up north again, for a look see and a handshake.
