Colorful, Exciting

Piracy On High Seas and Nineteenth Century Society Combined

Colorful romance, exciting action and thrilling suspense abound in "Buccaneer's Girl," technicolor picture of buccaneering days around New Orleans in 1810, which opened at the Capitol Theatre last evening and is being repeated tonight.

Glamorous Yvonne De Carlo, who is at present a visitor in British Columbia, for the round-up there, is the star of the piece and playing in the opposite lead is Philip Friend, handsome young British actor, making his screen debut on this side.

Miss De Carlo has the part of an intriguing young miss who invades Nineteenth Century New Orleans society as an entertainer and captures the heart of society's number one bachelor. When she discovers his dual role as a pirate leader who pillages cargo-laden ships of a scheming millionaire merchant and donates the gains to a seamen's fund, she remains by his side. Various thrilling episodes lead to a stirring climax.

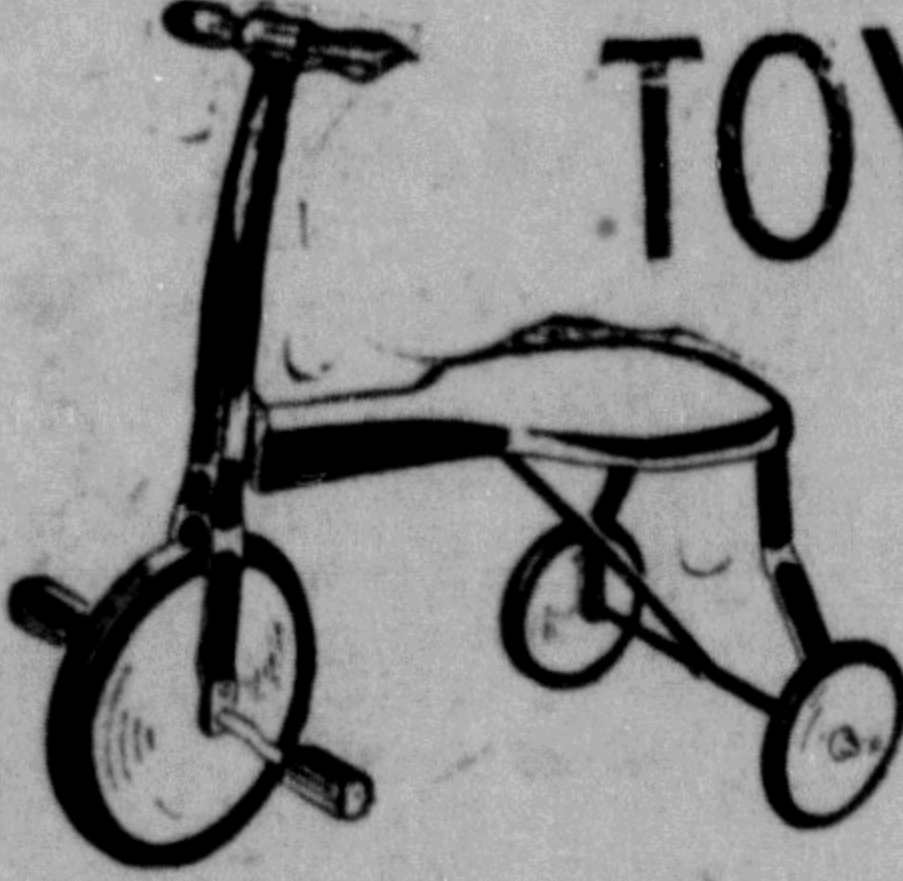

The supporting cast includes such favorites as Elsa Lanchester, Andrea King, Henry Daniell, Douglas Lunbrille and John Qualen.

Elected Second Vice-President

Mrs. J. S. Black of Prince Rupert was elected second vice-president of the provincial command of the Women's Auxiliary of the Canadian Legion at the recent convention in Trail which she attended. Her regional jurisdiction includes Northern and Central British Columbia. Mrs. Black was at Trail as the flood waters of the Columbia River were rising recently. They had entered the basement of the Crown Point Hotel, the smelter city's principal hostelry.
