Talking About Stewart Drawl

Kissless Pictures Becoming Popular

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Jimmy Stewart's lazy drawl is one of the most famous products of Hollywood, but says the lanky star, "I don't know exactly how I got it."

"Nobody noticed it much until I got to Hollywood," said the actor. "People seemed to like it, so of course I didn't try to get rid of it. It couldn't be geographical. I'm from Pennsylvania, and they don't have a drawl there. They do have a few peculiarities of speech, though. You don't notice them until you get away from home. I get tickled when I hear my mother sometimes; she'll say she is going to 'rid' a room, that means she's going to clean it."

About his speech habits, Jimmy added, "I think it's a combination of slow talking and stuttering. It has been a handicap to me at times. When I have to speak rapidly and forcefully, I have trouble."

"But, I guess I can't complain,"

CHAPLIN AND CHAPMAN

Charlie Chaplin is working far into the night on his new movie script. He has cancelled all social engagements in order to get the new film ready for early production. It could be that he is heartened by the success of the "City Lights" re-issue, following his disappointment with "Monsieur Verdoux." Chaplin believes the latter was his greatest effort, but the public felt different.

Marguerite Chapman announced she was retiring from films two years ago. She tried two other careers, marriage and interior decorating, and gave up both. Now she's back in pictures, making "Kansas Raiders." She says: "That's the last time I'll retire."

ODDS 'N' ENDS

Kissless pictures are becoming prevalent in Hollywood, which is getting more unromantic by the day. Rhonda Fleming and Quebec's Glenn Ford exchange no kisses in "Beyond the Sunset," nor do William Holden and Nancy Olson in "Union Station."

"The Men" (U.A.) is a profoundly moving film, mainly because it bears a resemblance to life that is rare in Hollywood films. It tells about the treatment of war veterans who are paralyzed from the waist down. The theme is filmed in such a human manner that it becomes entertainment. The cast, many of them real veterans, is uniformly excellent. Marlon Brando's debut is strange but provocative.

English Artist Moves to Canada

HALIFAX—An English artist whose work has gained considerable fame in Britain and has been exhibited in the Royal Academy in London and in Paris Salons, yesterday became a Canadian.

She is Mrs. Jean Floyd (John Manning Saunders) who arrived here yesterday with her two children, John, 11, and Christopher, 4, in the Cunard liner George and is now enroute to Vancouver in a Canadian National Railways boat train to establish her home there.

"I hope to be able to continue my work in Vancouver," said Mrs. Floyd. "It may be possible for me to do commercial work there, but that all depends upon how I find things when I get settled and whether there is a demand for such paintings."

Mrs. Floyd emigrated to Canada through the interest of Mrs. C. E. Findlater, of Vancouver, a friend of many years, whom she met in England last year during a British tour of the Elgar Junior Choir which Mrs. Findlater conducted last year.

The family was among more than 300 persons to arrive here in the George. On its way westward the CNR boat train will take 45 persons to Maritime destinations, 56 to Quebec, 143 to Ontario and more than 100 to Western Canada.

ISLE OF SHEPPEL, Kent, England—Kent County Council is considering spending £652,000 ($2,021,200) on a tunnel under the River Swale linking Kent to the Isle of Sheppey.

Mr. and Mrs. P. H. Linzey are leaving the city a week from today on the Princess Louise for a month's vacation trip. They will proceed direct to Victoria after which they will go to Chilliwack where their Prince Rupert-born niece, Miss Josephine Linzey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Linzey, formerly of this city, will be married June 29. After the wedding, Mr. and Mrs. Linzey will continue their travels as far south as Long Beach, California.
