MEMORIAM
In loving memory of my husband and father who passed away Nov. 1947.
Irene F. Wether, for friend.
I will live with us to the end.
Your kindness was a comfort to me.
Each tollsome heavy day,
I was loved, from childhood,
I love shone until he died.
The zone, is still our home,
I will love until the end.
Some memories in our hearts,
In this world we shall meet.
HEMMONS FAMILY.

HARBOR HAVEN FOR WILD GEESE

Ornithologists and bird fanciers always have admired wild geese for their exact navigation as well as their ability as long-distance fliers and this morning a flock of honkers demonstrated that they have good sense as well.
Beset by a night fog, a large flock of geese, presumably heading south, sat down in Prince Rupert harbor to await better flying conditions. Probably their leaders, in their wisdom, knew that they were picking not only one of the best harbors in the world but one in which the use of guns is frowned on by the game authorities.
There was nothing secret about the night rendezvous. The flock improved the hours of darkness and early morning dusk by holding raucous council, a racket that could be heard in many parts of the city. They took off again as it grew lighter.
Flights of geese over the city in the last week are said to be the heaviest in many years. At the week-end a series of flights composed of thousands of geese passed over, heading grimly southward, despite the buffeting of a gale.

CATHEDRAL FALL SALE AND TEA

Evening branch of St. Andrew's Cathedral Woman's Auxiliary were hostesses Saturday afternoon to a large attendance of ladies at their fall sale and bazaar in the church hall. Receiving were Mrs. Basil S. Procter and Mrs. F. E. Anfield.
Convener of the bright affair was Mrs. Harry Hanson, who also was in charge of the fancy work booth. A large number of members of the Evening Branch assisted in the tea room and at the stalls.
Pourers were Mrs. J. B. Gibson, Mrs. R. L. McIntosh, Mayor Nora E. Arnold and Mrs. E. Hodson.
The tea and sale was opened at 2:30 by Canon W. F. Rushbrook with appropriate words of welcome.
Mrs. Alf Rivett was in charge of the tea room while the novelty and candy stall was directed by Mrs. Reg Good.
Ladies of the Afternoon Branch directed the home cooking table. They were Mrs. Jarvis H. McLeod, Mrs. C. C. Mills, and Mrs. T. B. Black.
Cashier was Mrs. E. Lindseth
